LEARNING TO LIVE--THE PROCESS OF DEVELOPING

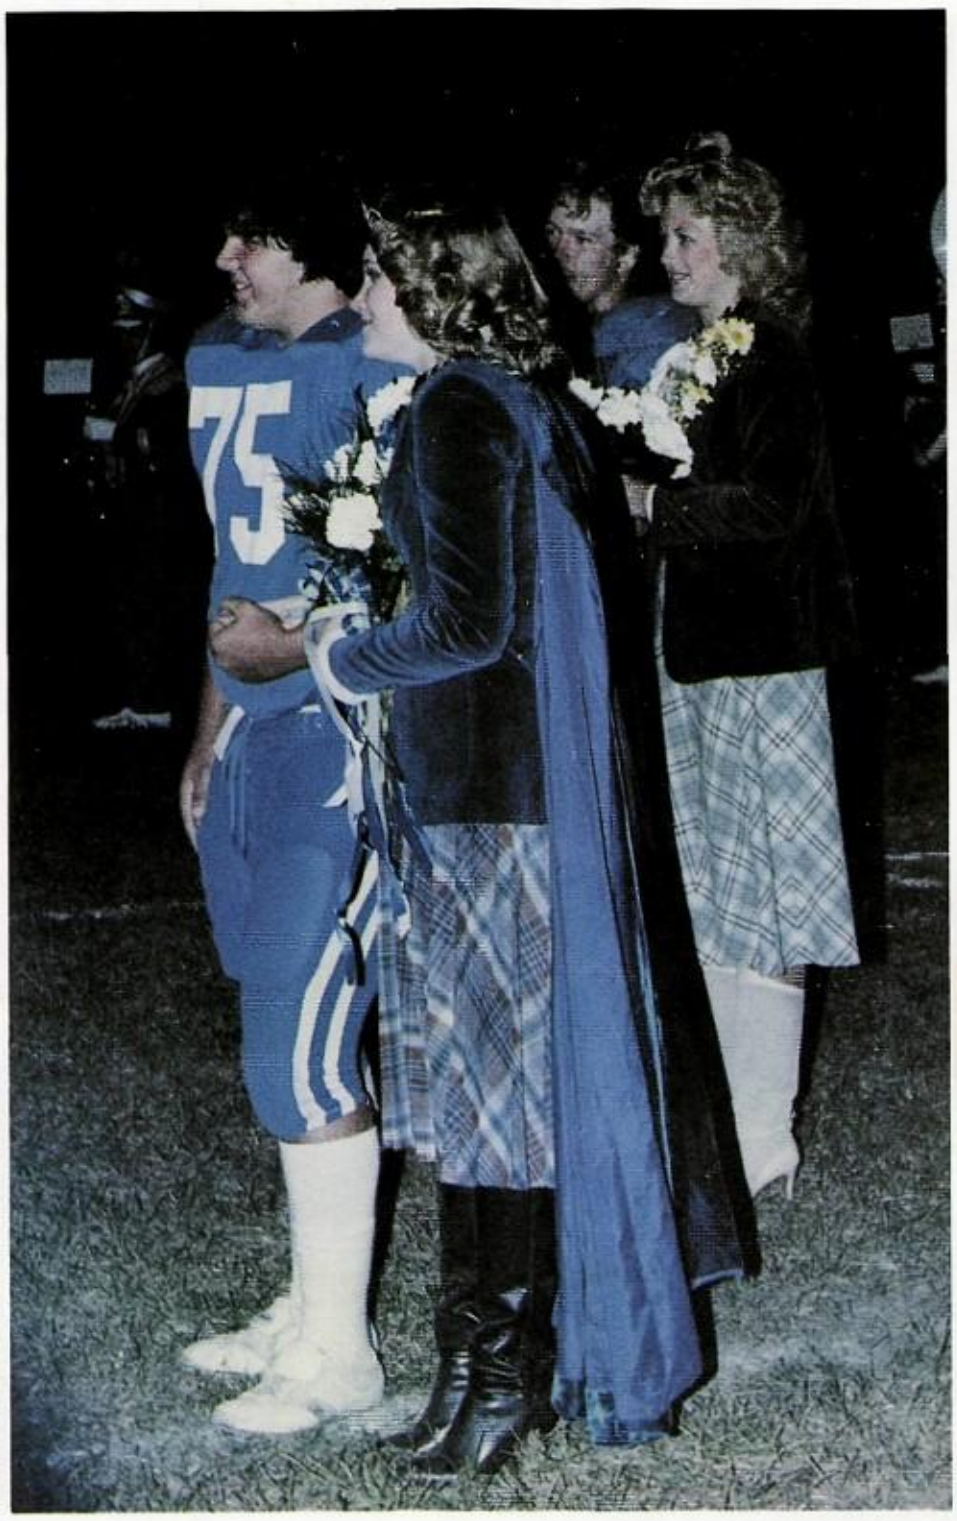
STUDENTS INTO ADULTS IS THE BASIC OBJECTIVE OF THE WRHS EDUCATION PROGRAM.



"School is more than just messing around. Sure, there are times for goofing around in the halls and stuff, but, incredible as it may sound, the real reason we're here is to learn," summed up one senior.

Through different courses and activities at school, students prepare for living beyond high school in one way or another. Whether we realize it at the time or not, our school relationships determine how we accept new ideas, deal with our frustrations, promote our well-being, and develop friendships that will last during much of our life times.

Whether the student chooses to specialize in one area or selects a variety of classes to explore different areas, he is preparing for his future.

By participating in extra-curricular activities, students learn how to cooperate, socialize, and follow their special interests. Whether designed for career exploration, recreation, or service, clubs give students an opportunity to be involved with activities that develop their personal interests. Sports and entertainment groups teach students that personal efforts promote a common goal set by the team.

ACTIVITIES—PAGE 78

BUSINESS—PAGE 130

We, the Chimes staff of 1981, dedicate our book to those who have made it possible for us to learn to live more full and interesting lives. We especially recognize our parents and patrons for making available the facilities and programs to promote effective learning.

We also recognize Bettie Fargo, the district's nominee for Kansas Teacher of the Year, and her fellow staff members for providing quality educational experiences benefittingus within the academic and extracurricular program. Teaching and administering the curricular offerings provide the challenge to help students grow individually, as do the efforts of coaches and sponsors involved with extracurricular activities.

And to our fellow classmates, we dedicate the memories of those friendships and ideas that help us remain both an individual and an involved member of the WRHS student body.

Without the support of those advertisers in our business community and in the school, this book would not be possible. Therefore, special recognition is given to the commercial and group supporters for both the experiences and financing we found so necessary.

THE 1981 CHIMES IS DEDICATED TO THOSE PEOPLE WHO HELP EACH STUDENT LEARN TO LIVE A MORE EFFECTIVE LIFE.

DESIGNED TO HELP EACH STUDENT LEARN TO LIVE IN TODAY'S SOCIETY, RURAL'S ACADEMIC PROGRAM EMPHASIZES PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT.

"The curricular program at WRHS has prepared me to be a solid person in my future — each day of school has made me a better person today, and a more prepared one for the future," states senior Gregg Binkley.

From the time one starts school until the time he graduates from high school, the educational program prepares him for a new type of life in a constantly changing world.

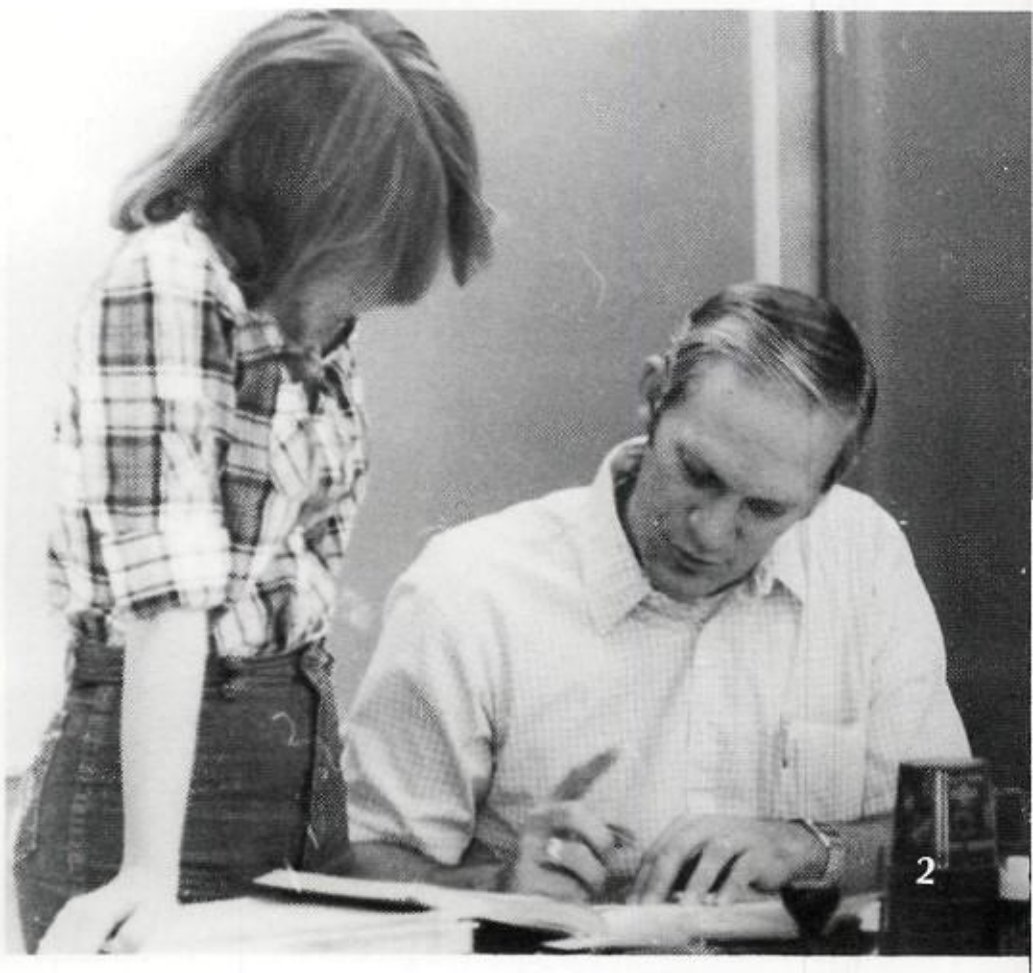
After graduation some students will go on to college or continue formal education programs in other areas. These students are making the decision to enter the higher educational levels before choosing a life career. Others accumulate skills during their high school years to prepare them for later life.

"Classes offered in our program have prepared me immensely for my future. I think our college preparatory classes are an excellent source of knowledge," notes senior Marcia Bruno.

During this time of new learning and adjusting to school, it is common for most students to encounter some frustration or great disappointments.

Through these learning processes some students make satisfying achievements; they also learn to live with disappointments. Even though one might not go on to college, the academic program helps prepare each student for what lies ahead when he gets out of high school.

MICROCOMPUTERS EMPHASIZE NEW TREND



1. Kathy O'Dowd, senior, takes dictation in super secretary class. 2. Getting help on her consumer math assignment from Mr. Larry Longhofer is sophomore Jackie Harr. 3. Mr. Wayne Howbert helps Jeff Romine, junior, with his Algebra II work. 4. Yolanda Orndoff, senior, works on one of her daily problems in super secretary. 5. Aiding Teresa Stewart, sophomore, with her -geometry assignment is sophomore Sean Roberts. 6. Junior, Robyn Bruce, gets assistance with a project from Mrs. Bettie Fargo, District 437's nominee for the Kansas Teacher of the Year program. 7. Checking a problem on the board, senior Tim Tucker learns the correct answer in numerical analysis. 8. Students enjoy free time in consumer math.

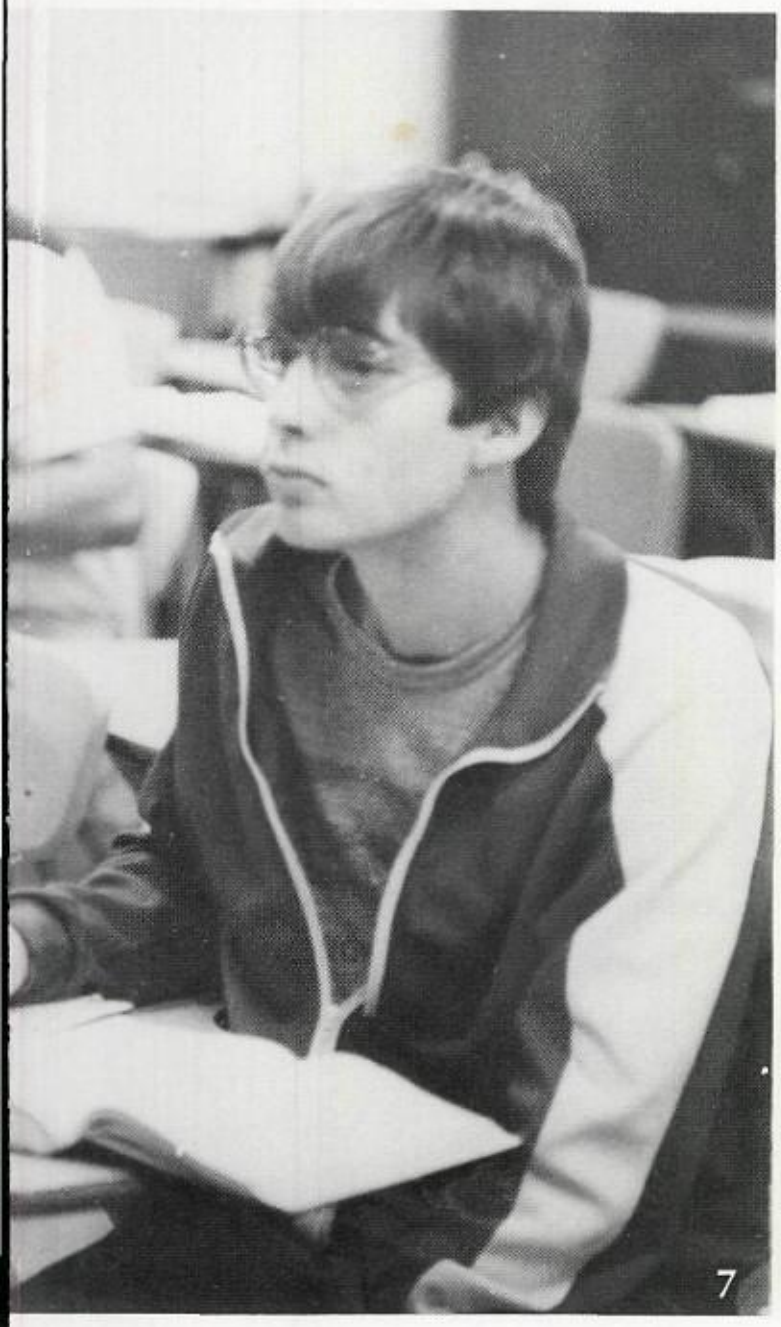
IN LEARNING

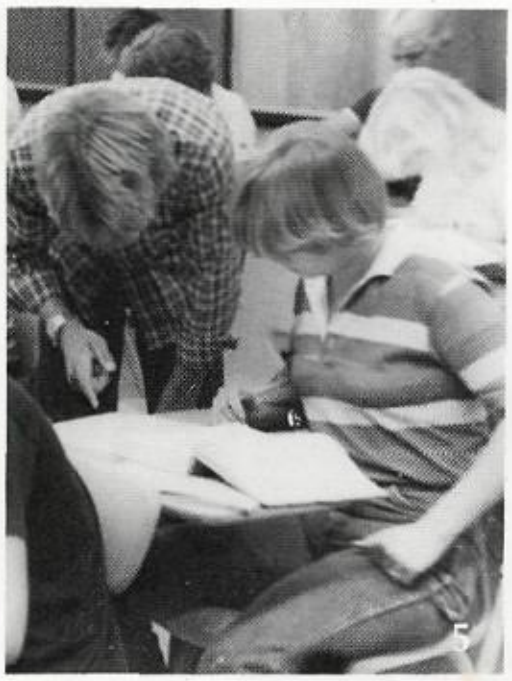
"I enjoy teaching,over all my other classes, Algebra II," stated Mr. Wayne Howbert, the math department head,"I like teaching Algebra II because the students taking this course are usually taking it by choice and not because they are required by the school their parents."

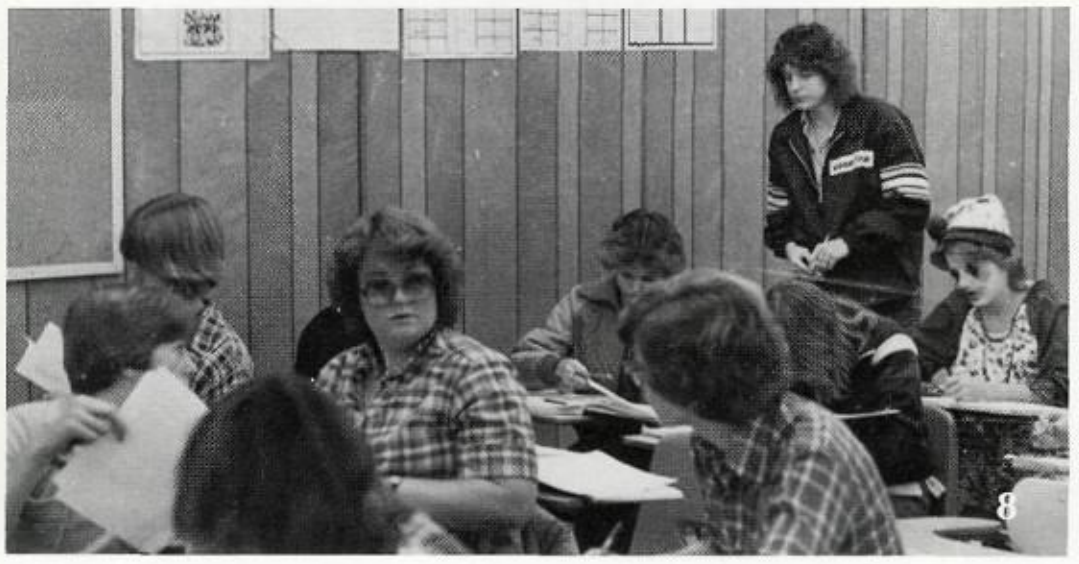
The mathematical and business departments of WRHS provided fifteen different courses for the student body during the 1980-81 school year.

Algebra II isn't the only course available in the math department. There are different courses with varying difficulties,designed to meet the needs of each individual student. These courses range from consumer math and Alegbra I to Algebra II and numerical analysis.

A new data processing computer was acquired for the business department of WRHS during the year.
"The computer is a great asset to the business department," stated department head Mr. Chester Templer.
"We used the computer in the beginning for the advanced accounting classes and Typing II classes but after we learned a little more about the use of it we worked it into the business machines part of our department."







INDIVIDUAL SKILLS DEVELOPED TO PROMOTE

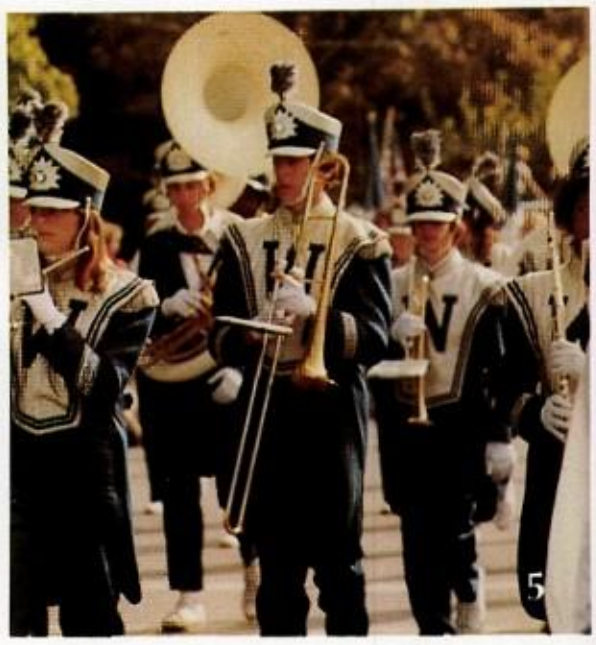
"I have really enjoyed being a part of the band. It is a rewarding group to be in and I'm proud of it," stated Mark Radford, senior.

Instrumental music, under the direction of Mr. Clifford Manning, provided musical entertainment during the football season with pre-game and half-time shows at the varsity home games. Pep Band, composed of members of the concert band, performed at varsity basketball games.

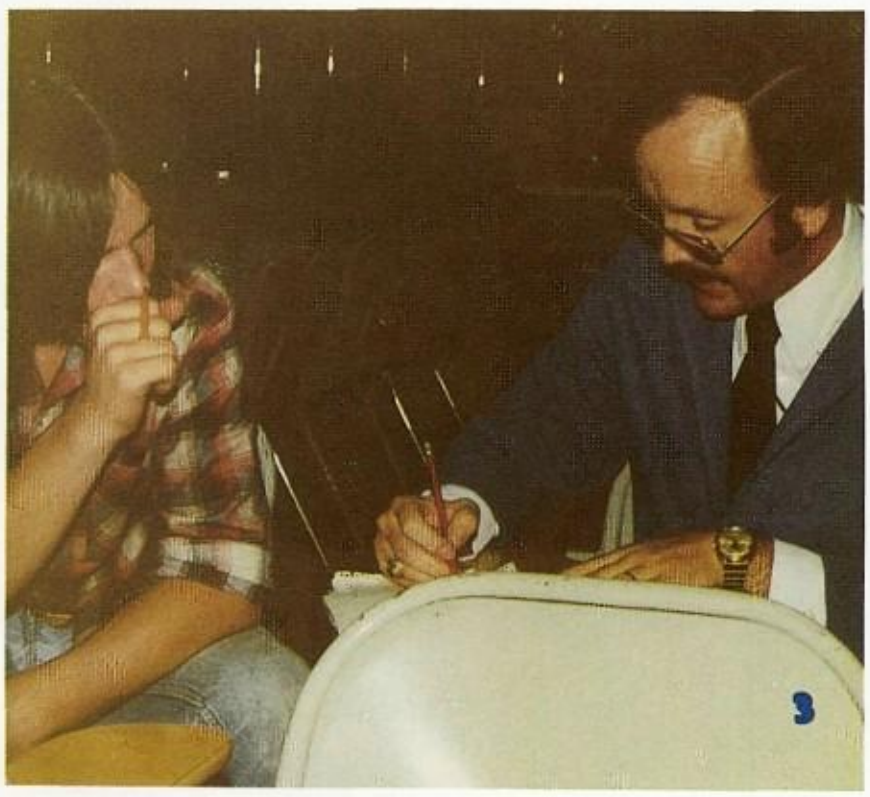
Treble Clef Club, an all-girl group, included performances at the Veteran's Administration Hospital and the Variety Show in their appearances. Concert Choir, a large group of both men and women singers, performed at the fall and spring concerts, Christmas progams, and Variety Show.

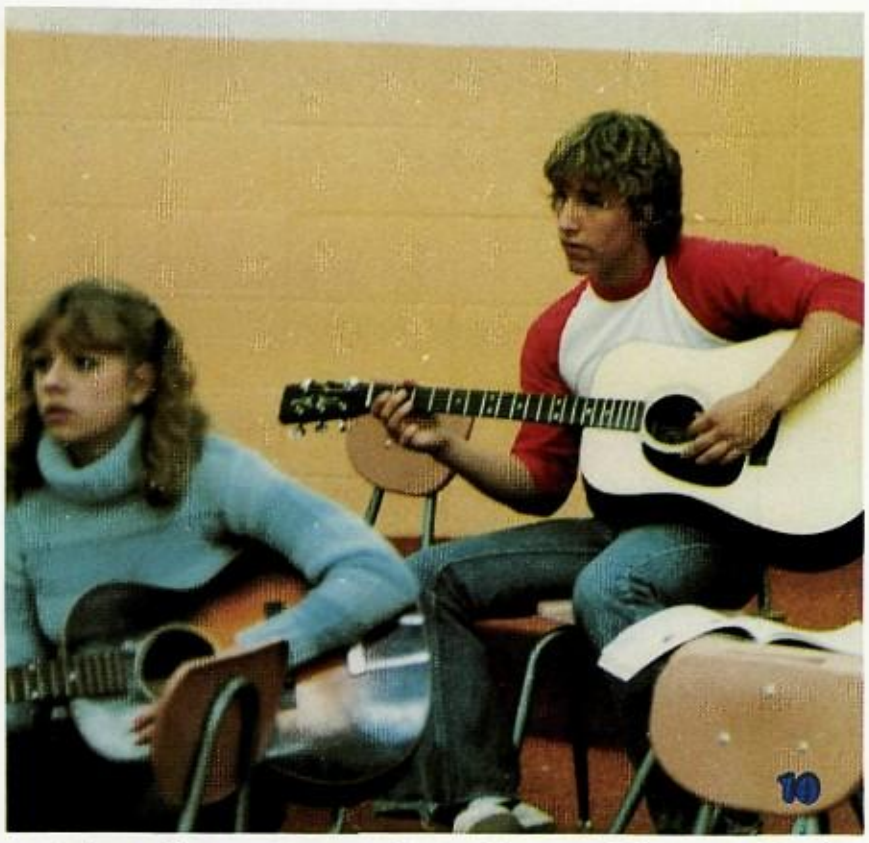
This Generation, pop choir at WRHS traveled around to various places showing their singing skills.

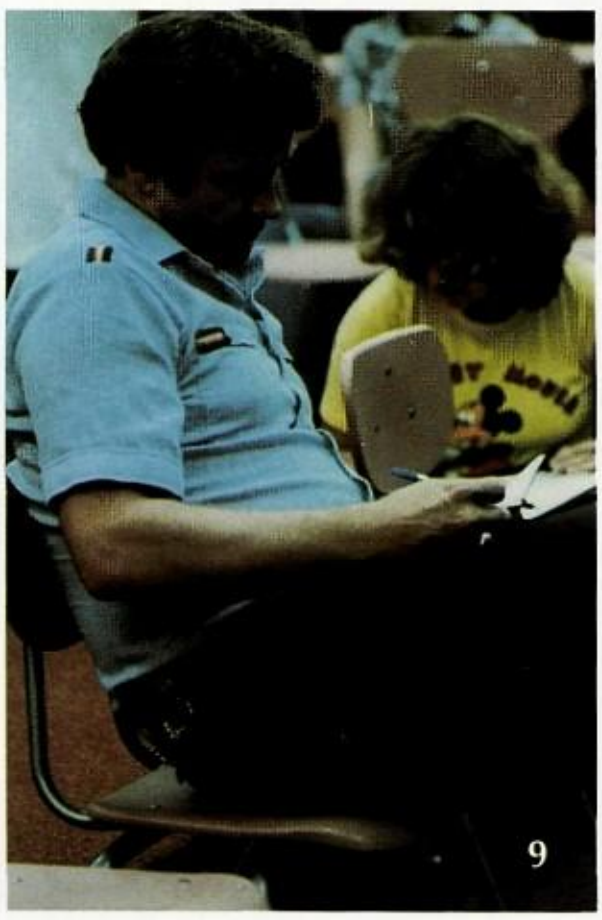
Stage band provided instrumental accompaniment for the Painted Rhythm Variety Show and participated in the spring and winter concerts.



GROUP PERFORMANCES







1. John Miller,senior,Kerri Mauldin, and Shannon Crosley, juniors, and Ginny Beal,senior, listen to instructions in choir. 2. Continuous practice in marching band is part of the fall schedule with the "Marching Jr. Blues." 3. Mr. Clifford Manning instructs Danny Gaffney,sophomore, on the basics of music in his fundamental of music class. 4. Learning a new number for "This Generation,"junior Jeff Spaulding gets in a little practice. 5. During Kansas State University's Band Day, the marching band makes its way through the streets of Manhattan. 6. A heart formation was dedicated to the Homecoming queen. 7. Leeta Sanders,junior, and seniors Larry Cobler,KevinMcCarter, Shelly Goacher, and Danny Simpson,practice on their routines for "This Generation." 8. Members of Treble Clef Club, Debra Hays, Michelle Mehlinger, and Holly Smith, sophomores, and Kelly Ross,junior, polish up their singing skills during class. 9. Vocal music director, Mr. Gerry Goacher,looks over musical arrangements. 10. Stacy Sanders and Pat Fehr,sohpomores, practice on their guitars during begining guitar class.

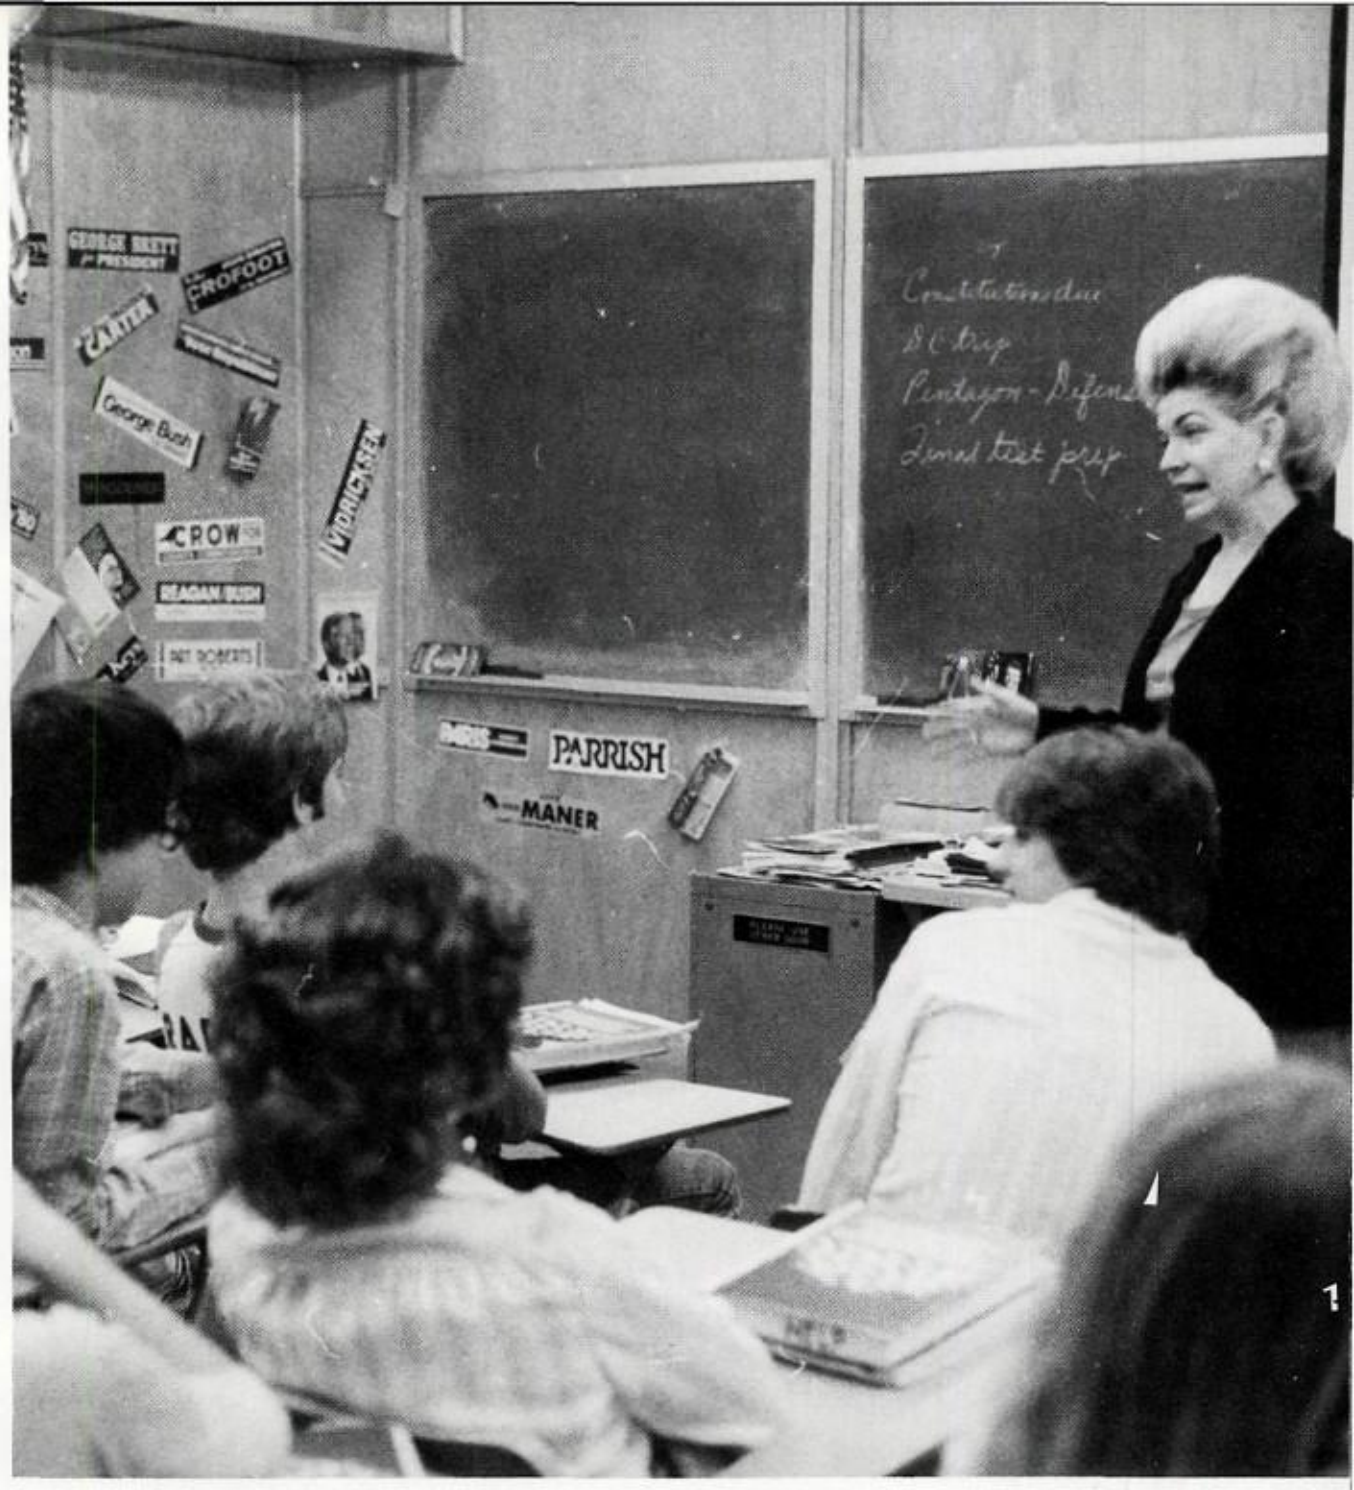
ELECTIONS

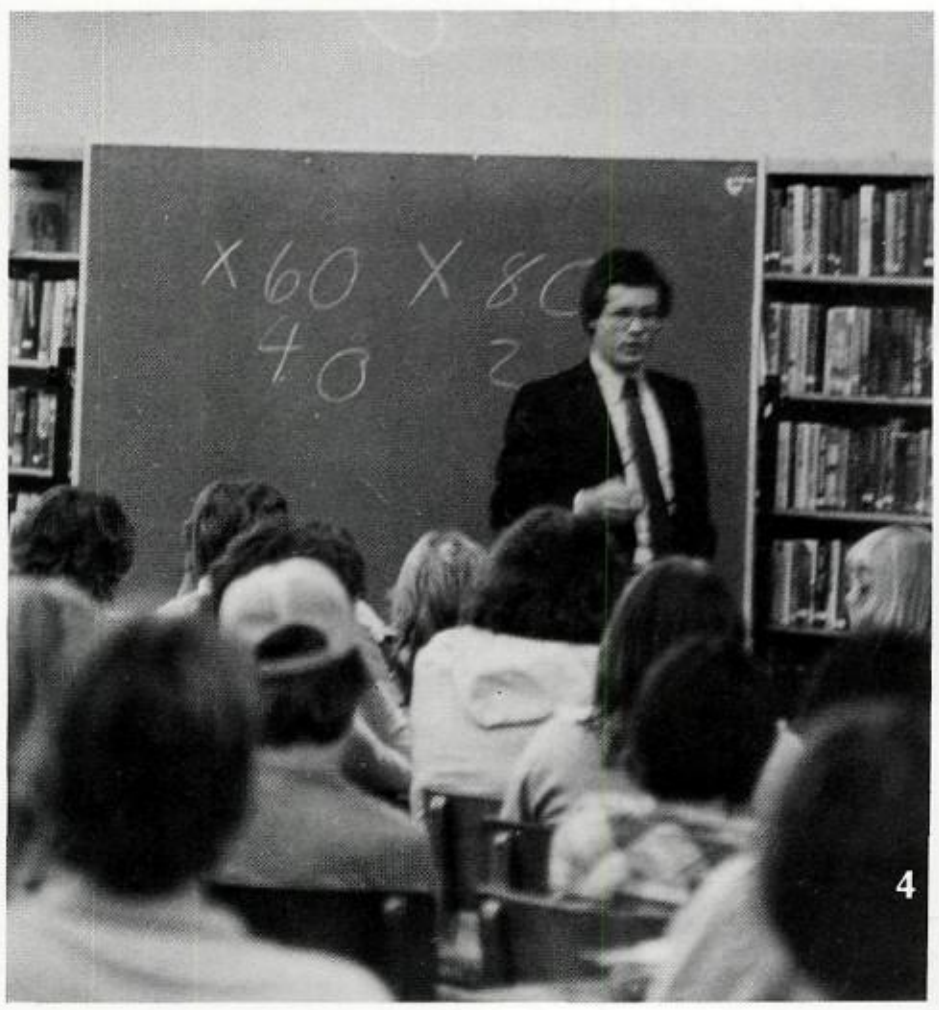
"I thought the whole experience was a blast. My feet were killing me, but I learned a lot," stated Martha Henderson, senior, following the Close-up Seminar in Washington, D.C. in December. Funding for the trip was provided by businesses and individuals in the Topeka area, and was sponsored by Mrs. Lee Kinney, social studies instructor.

Close-up participation was only one of the special activities sponsored by the social studies department in an effort to make "governmental" learning more realistic and fun. Other governmental-related topics included candidates presenting their views election debates.

Mr. Mike Naster's students held their own elections, gave individual electoral votes to Presidential candidates, and attended trials at the courthouse.

Bio-feedback, demonstrations, reports, social discussions, and study of the world's many religions were all part of Mrs. Carolyn Jones' classes.





PROMOTE STUDY OF NATION'S GOVERNMENT

CLASSES IN

"Believe it or not, chemistry," commented Tim Pickford, senior, about the class that had helped him most, "because I learned I had to be responsible for my own work. I didn't have someone reminding me every day on what was to be done."

The biology and chemistry classes helped students learn to reason, compare, and discover. Biology I and II are the basic foundations of science.

Sonja David, senior, said, "Biology has been my most important class and it will greatly help me when I enter college."

Physics, Chemistry I and Chemistry II advance students' reasoning through encouraged participation inside and outside of the class. These classes help students understand through experimentation. The involvement in class is assured with projects and discussion to keep everyone busy. These students learned to think, react, and to know about their life and surroundings.

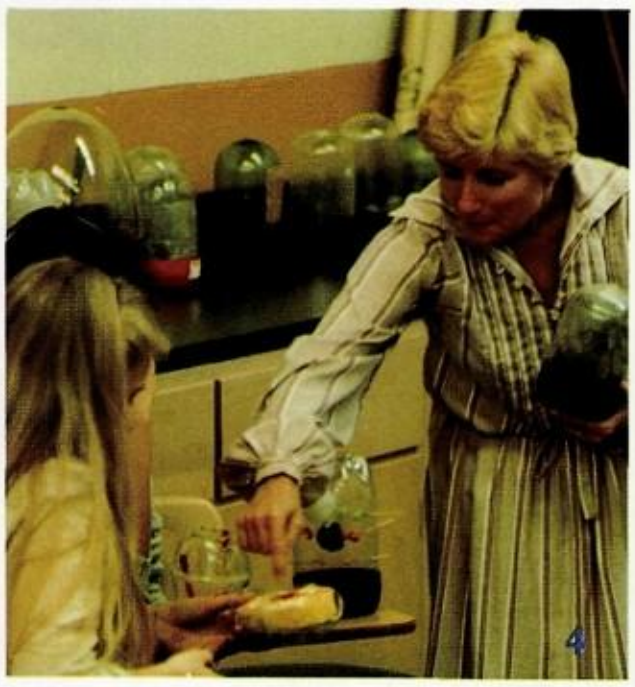
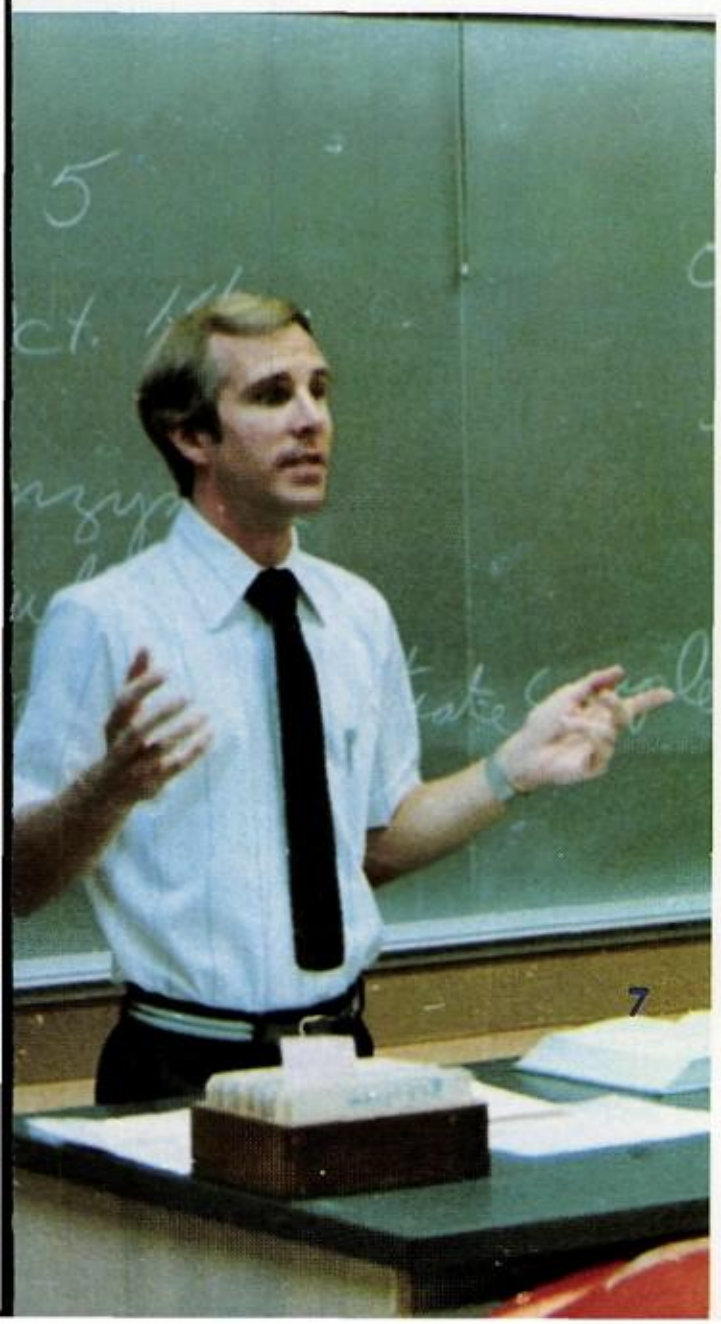
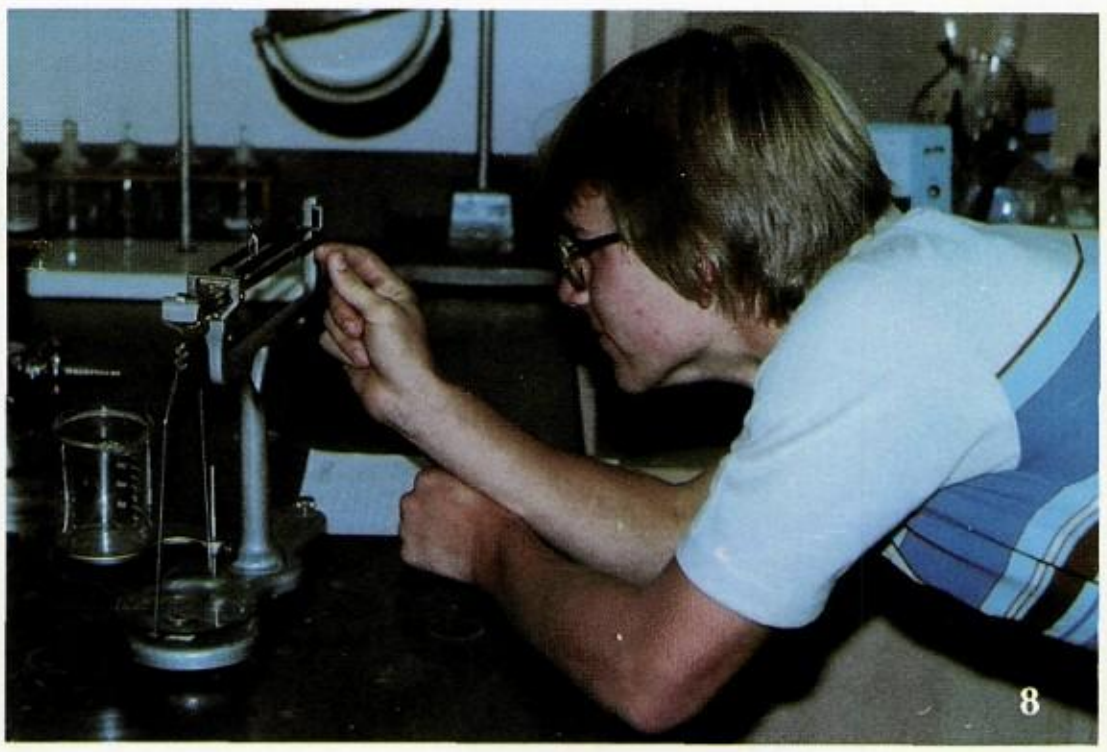
SCIENCE PROVIDE UNDERSTANDING OF CHANGE

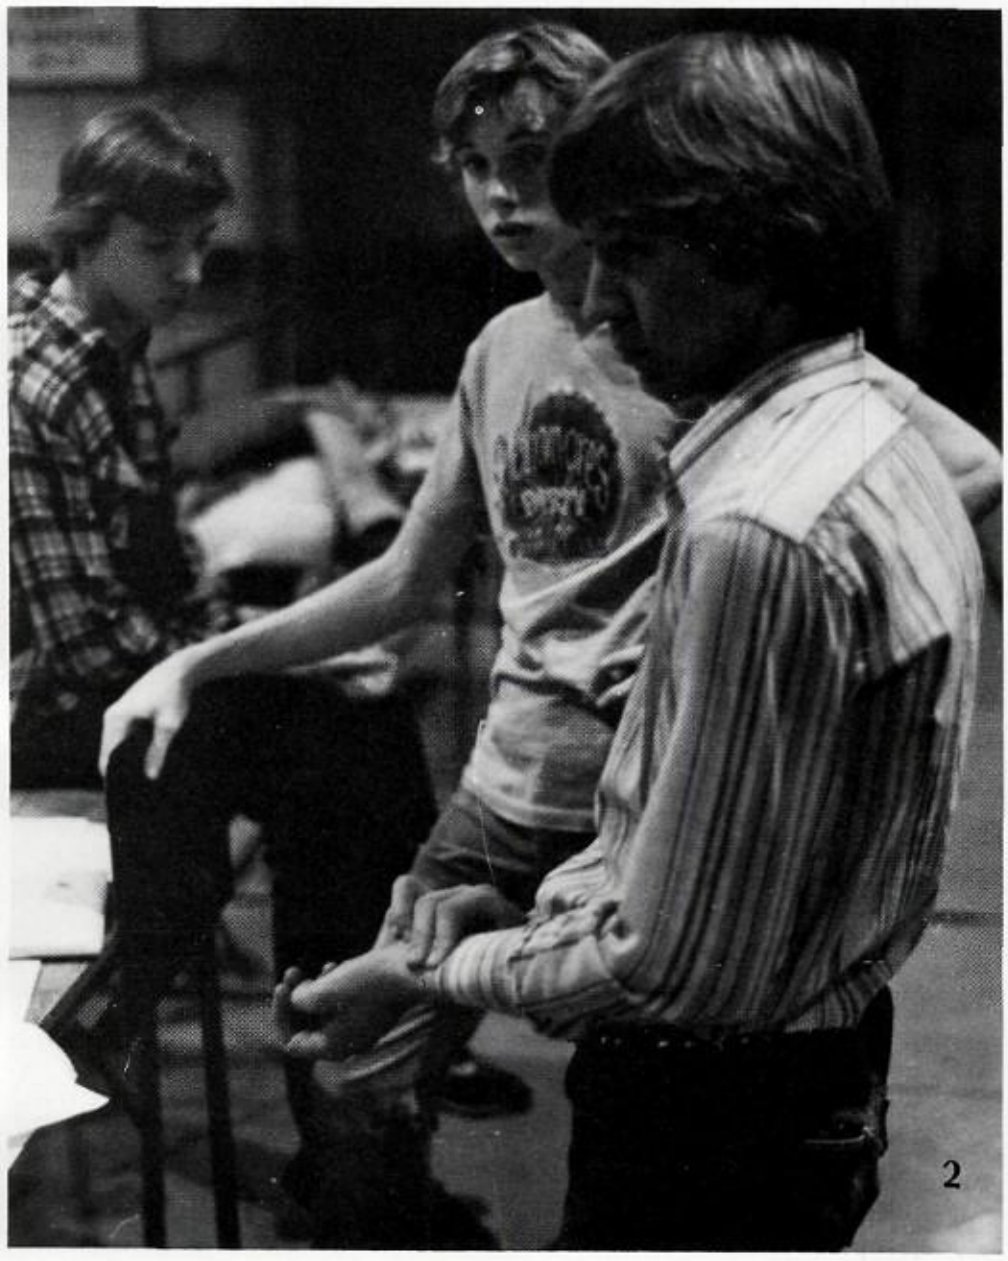


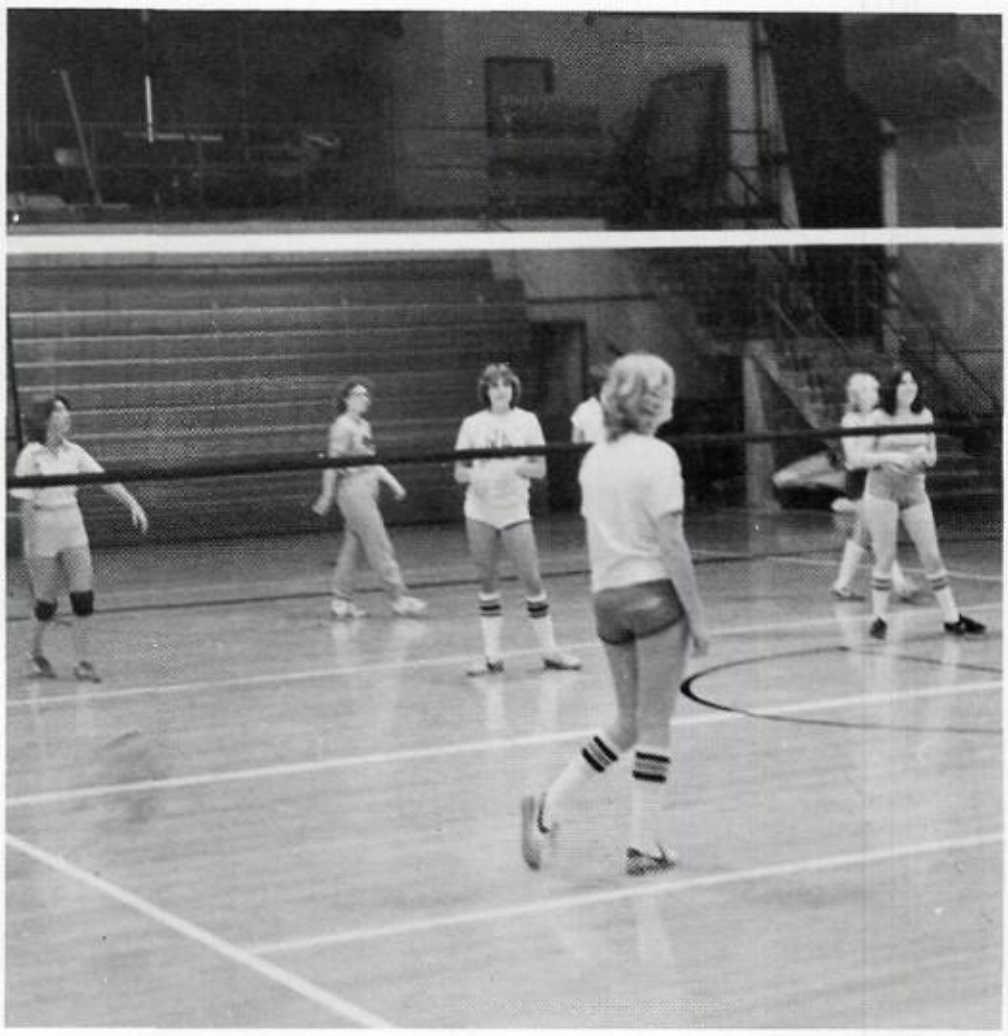




1. Sharon Cokeley and Loyal Morgan, juniors, and Robert Schick, senior, watch as Mr. Lindsay performs an experiment in fourth hour chemistry. 2-3. Biology I aide, Roger Linnenburger, junior, helps students in dissecting worms, while Mr. Ray Glaze, instructor, grades papers. 4. Mrs. Marcia Groth explains the functions of a terrarium to Haley Richter and Kelly Algarin sophomores. 5. Mr. Dennis Ary's Biology II class takes a field trip to Shadywood, to study nature at its best—outside. 6. Biology I student Stacy Sanders, sophomore, listens during a class discussion. 7. Mr. Dennis Swiercinsky teaches a Biology I class. 8. Chris Connelly, junior, weighs a quarter on the balance scales during chemistry.

HEALTH, FITNESS AND SAFTEY IMPORTANT





1. Watching sophomore Bob Steele lift weights in physical education are junior Gary Tucker and sophomore Joel Warkentine. 2. Recording their blood pressures as a health project are Steve Dehning and Robert Ferris, sophomores. 3. An Emergency Medical Technician from St. Francis Hospital shows junior Kenny Hillyard how to perform cardio-pulmonary resuscitation. 4. School nurse, Mrs. Penny Selbee helps sophomore Tim Fischer take his pulse. 5. Girls P.E. students rotate positions while playing volleyball. 6. Driver education instructor Mr. Don Schroder and sophomore Todd Harper go for a practice drive after school. 7. Advanced P.E. students wait in line to bat while senior Jenni Ross takes a swing.

TO RURAL STUDENT LEARNING DEVELOPMENT

"Physical education keeps me in shape, and when you're in shape, it makes you feel good," stated Gregg Schutter, senior.

Units in physical education this year included such things as archery, basketball, football, aerobic dancing, and weight units. Classes this year were conducted by Ms. Terri Lasswell, Mr. Ron Bowen, and Mr. Sam Austin, who taught one our at WRHS each day.

The main objective of these classes is to develop a healthy bodyt through the nine-week classes, taught by Mr. Ray Glaze, the students learn how the human body functions. Health students also learned how to perform cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

Students participating in driver's education this year found it to be different than the years before. Only one classroom session, taught by Mr. Jerry Beardslee, was offered. Instead of missing classes to drive during school, students did practice driving after school

COURSES IN

"Social acceptance is largely a part of clothing and clothing design, and I guess that's why I became so fascinated by it," said junior Dagmar Kaspar, Clothing IV student.

Home Economics included Clothing I, II, III, and family living courses taught by Mrs. Roberta Foth. As each class progressed more difficult tasks were accomplished.

Foods I, II, III, and IV classes, taught by Mrs. Christine Pace, were challenged by projects such as vegetarian diets, fitness, preserving food, and cake decorating,

Many courses of special interest were offered to Rural students through the curricular program at the Kaw Area Vocational—Technical School. These half-day classes allowed for the development of job entry skills as students completed required high school credits. Other students prepared to complete advanced one and two year programs.

HOME EC, VO-TECH EXPLORED CAREER IDEAS

1. As a project in life of a child class, students entertained children at a Christmas party. 2. During his class at Kaw Area-Vocational Technical School, junior George Hicks works on an engine. 3. Students from Marriage and Parenting wait to tour a mortuary while on a field trip. 4. In Secretarial office education at Vo-tech, senior Tammy Baughman works on her studies. 5. Working on a front end alignment at Vo-tech is senior Jack Grey. 6. Answering a fellow student's question in welding at Vo-tech is senior Mike Koci. 7. Inspecting parts of a plastic cow model in order to determine grades of meat was a part of Foods II as sophomores Christie Malecki and Amy Massey demonstrate. 8. Foods III and IV students get ready to sample the oriental dish they prepared.

VO-AG, DRAFTING EXPERIENCES

"Vocational agriculture has helped me decide to go into agri-business as a career and then I plan to go to law school and become a lawyer to represent the farmers," stated Jeff Whisler, senior.

Vocational Agriculture was very important to many people at Washburn Rural, as it provided a way for students to learn what the agriculture industry is about.

The class covered three main areas of study, including animal science, obtaining agriculture mechanics skills, and developing leadership qualities through Future Farmers of America activities. Some of the vo-ag activities included a contest at the Sunflower State Expo Fair, in which several people received awards for their accomplishments. The highlight of the event for Rural was winning the Grand Champion Chapter Crop Exhibit prize.

This year's drafting students learned everything from basic fundamentals to the study of special architectural and engineering problems.

The courses were designed to give class members a basic understanding of drafting techniques and other areas of drawing and designing.

EXPERIENCES

"I believe that the industrial arts department was an important part of my high school years because it provided the interest I was looking for that gave me the training I needed," remarked senior, Brian Benton.

The industrial arts program consisted of nine different areas ranging from Environmental Products to Woods I, II, and III.

A part of the department Auto Mechanics worked on student's cars and they did some repair work for faculty in Washburn and around the district.

Woods I, II, and III worked on new type of projects ranging from bookcases to end tables, and the advanced students constructing more elaborate projects. Metals students learned basic skills in fabrication and welding. Materials and Processes class featured a unit on alternative energy sources which included experiments in solar power.

DEBATERS

"Participating in forensics, debate and drama has really made a difference in my life. It has given me self-confidence and taught me that hard work can accomplish almost anything," said senior Dawn Dow.

Speech and debate classes challenged students of WRHS to accumulate information on various topics and then use these facts to strengthen their communication skills.

In extra-curricular debate, Rurals' top team swept regionals with no losses and then traveled to State at Emporia where they placed fifth.

Forensics, an advanced course, utilized the fundamentals of speech and drama. Like debate, the forensics squad also traveled to different extra-curricular competitions as an activity to strengthen regular classroom exercises.

Drama classes studied acting, play production, and ancient and famous playrights during the 1980-81 school year. Drama I worked as duets on different plays and learned how to use the video tape recorder. Drama II's Children's Theatre presented four plays at area grade schools.

LEARNING.

"In sophomore English, the students start out at many different levels. What we try to do is give them basic English skills that will prepare them for either junior English or junior college prepatory English," stated Marlin Berry, English and journalism instructor.

Sophomore English classes emphasized learning to write clear paragraphs and the correct procedure in writing research papers.

Junior English's primary purpose was to provide students with basic communication skills necessary for adult living. Junior college prep classes discussed great American authors including Poe, Twain, and Whitman, and worked on basic and complex sentences, and vocabulary.

Senior English was aimed toward the students who did not plan to further their education. The course reviewed such skills as sentence structure, spelling, and vocabulary necessary for the reading and writing of everyday life.

Senior college prep challenged students to develop writing techniques and an understanding of which will be essential to them in college studies.

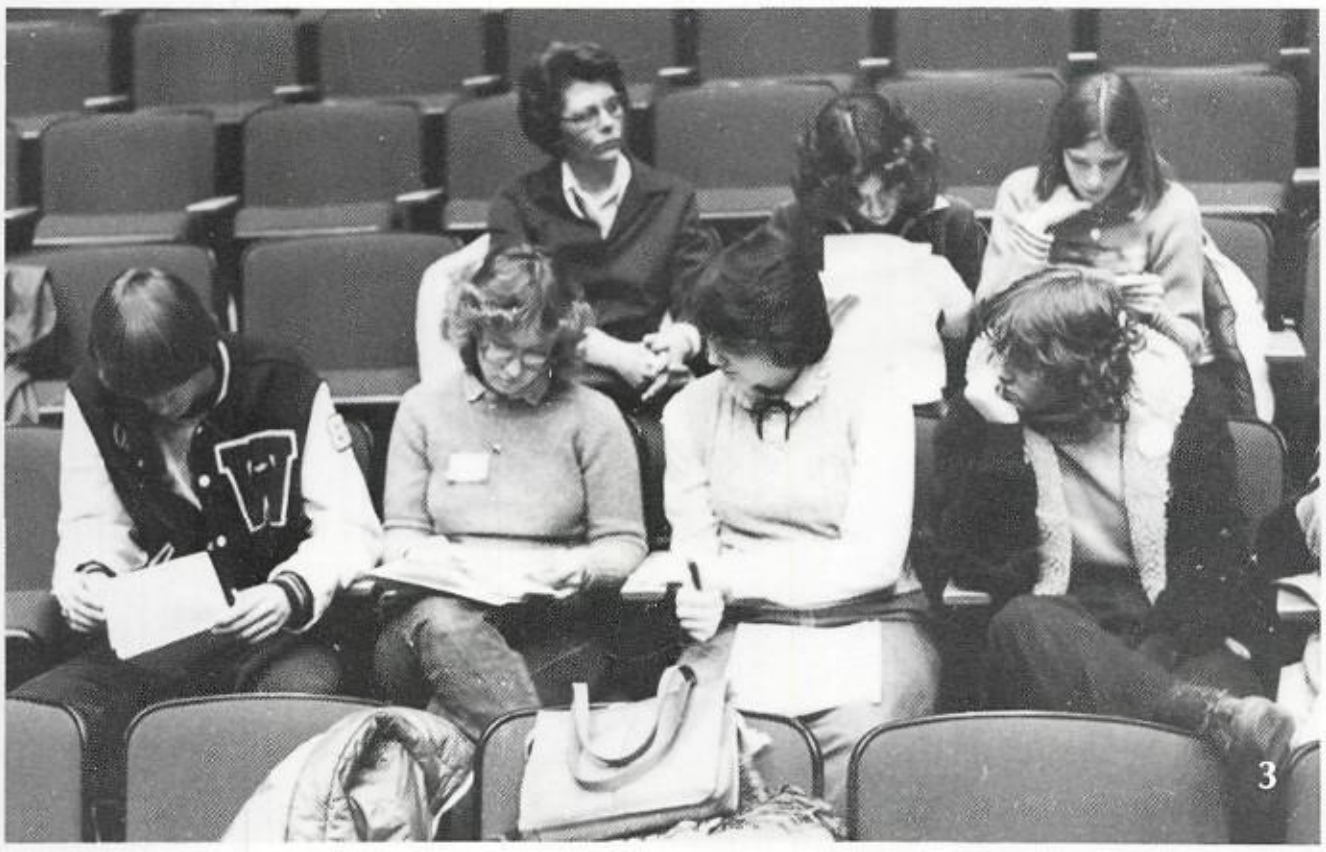
REINFORCED WITH PRACTICE, PUBLICATIONS



''Being on the staff of a school or district publication is a big responsibility, and takes loads of work that sometimes goes unnoticed and unappreciated,'' stated Jeannie Blanck, senior, on her experiences in the journalism area.

Journalism 1 students spent most of their class days learning the basics of various forms of mass communication. After these basic skills were studied, the J-1 classes put them to use by publishing one issue of the Blue Streak and by making model yearbooks.

Communication and keeping students informed on school events was the purpose of the bi-monthly newspaper, the Blue Streak. The 1980-81 Blue Streak staff published 14 issues.

Besides writing stories and pasteing up the district paper School News, production journalism students also had the responsibilities of making tickets, programs and other printed material for special events taking place at WRHS and in the district.

After selling advertisements and subscriptions for he 1981 Chimes, yearbook staffers had the responsibility of completing all pages included in the book. The staff created layouts and wrote copy to develop the chosen theme ''Learning to Live.''

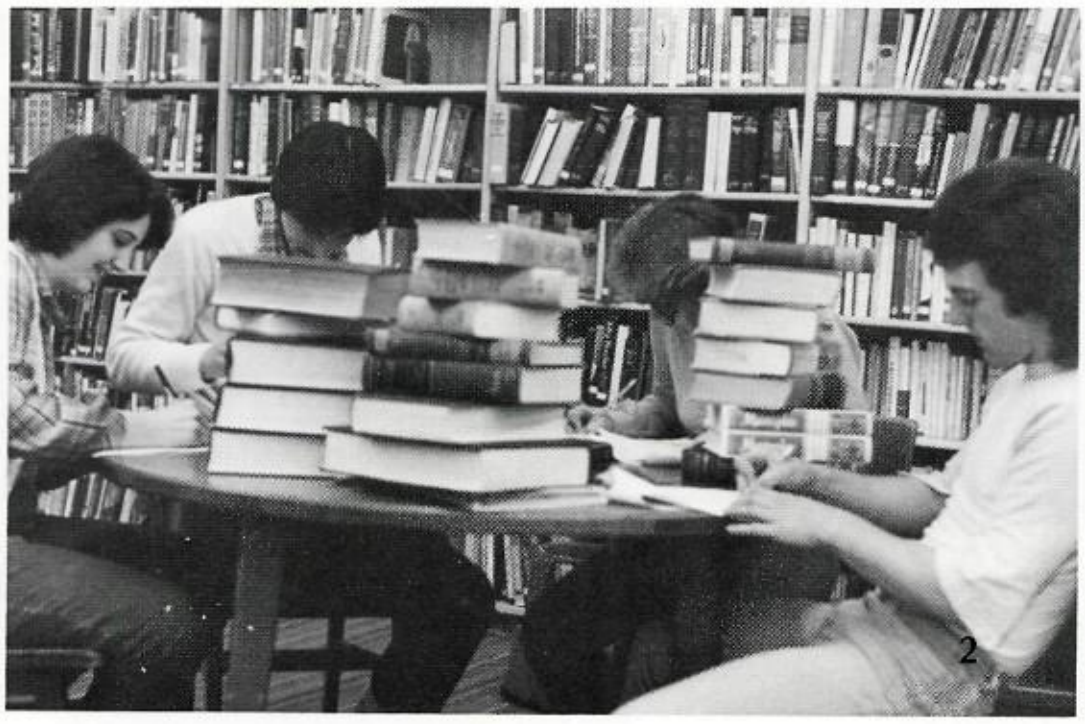
As library assistant, senior Lisa Wall returns books to their proper places. 8. Filling the pop machines is junior Bruce Speier.

AND RESEARCH AID IN HIGHER LEARNING



"Because of the work in Mrs. Maggie Hilt's senior college prep class I have become very familiar with our library; and knowing how to use the library will be helpful in my college work," stated Steve Malecki, senior.

The library was a central source of information for research in English, social studies, and many other subjects offered at Rural. It was open to all students and faculty members for personal reading enjoyment and for the required reading for some courses.

Special education teachers worked with those students who faced special problems in different learning areas to help them develop basic skills. Reading levels were appraised to allow for individual development of ability levels in comprehension of vocabulary and context of their reading materials. Individual development profiles were established for each student with special needs and programs were planned to provide coursework much like the regular curriculum.

COMPETITION

"My goal is not that each student become an artist, but my concern is that each student can create, become aware, and enjoy the beauty of the world around him," stated Mrs. Dorothy Schriock, art instructor.

The art department received a rock tumbler from the Booster Club and acquired some new jewelry and painting equipment for the 1980p81 school year.

The foreign language department acquired two new staff members in the 1980-81 school year. Mrs. Mellissa Holloman, French teach, and Ms. Donna Dodge,Spanish instructor.

"Spanish II and III students competed at Wichita in a Spanish contest where they achieved one of the best performances in WRHS history," remarked Ms. Donna Dodge. French classes learned traditional Carols along with their regular curriculum.

Leeta Sanders, junior, and Angie Stoltz, sophomore, complete a Spanish II work sheet.

FIELD TRIPS, SPEAKERS, AIDS STRENGTHEN

"It was really interesting, listening to the way the Supreme Court operates; there was a lot of legal jargon being tossed around, but still, it was neat," stated senior Thea Rademacher following her participation in the Kansas Close-Up Program February 25.

Special events and planned acitvities were used throughout the year to supplement learning experiences and regular classwork. Field trips, guest speakers, career seminars, and competition in local, regional, or state meets provided extra challenges for many students.

Spurred by the 1980 election, politics became a part of student life as candidates visited various classrooms to discuss issues and explain the election process. Major candidates drew over-flow groups and several classes followed the election trhough the inauguration via television and the video recorder. Seven seniors participated in the week-long Close-Up Foundation in Washington, D.C. and 11 students attended the first Kansas Close-Up Program.

"My participation in Rural's testing programs has helped a great deal with college admissions and scholarship applications," stated senior Patricia Crocker, a National Merit Commended Student.

Administering such tests as the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test, the National Mathematics Test, and other achievement tests provided additional experiences related to classroom growth and career plans. Individual tests to explore learning difficulties and abilities were supplemented through academic, career and psychological counseling.

Career seminars featured a panel of WRHS grads discussing work and college preparation, personnel representatives from military careers, and an explanation of "Employee Expectations." Field trips to and guest speakers from area businesses and organizations gave students another look at the school and business community. In addition, college and business representatives visited the school to meet with students individually and groups to explore career plans and ideas.

Sharing of new experiences were emphasized through establishment of the American Field Service chapter and the enrollment of Rural's first AFS exchange student.

EDUCATORS

"Staff members at WRHS are dedicated to helping each student reach his or her full academic and human potential," stated Mrs. Nancy Stumbo, English instructor.

This effort to help students learn to live for their years following high school began with the adoption or curriculum, policy, and budget by the district's seven member school board. Their goals were planned to provide continuing educational growth through the Auburn-Washburn district system which comprises three elementary schools, two middle schools, one junior high, and Washburn Rural High School.

The administrative staff, headed by district superintendent Irvin H. Myers, coordinated the development of curricular and activity programs throughout the school system. Centralized services were provided to further meet individual needs.

Coordination and operation of the comprehensive program for the 669 students enrolled at WRHS was the responsibility of Dale Smeltzer, principal, and Dick Patterson, director of student affairs. Assistance in scheduling, enrollment, academic records, and activity finances was provided by three office secretaries.

1. Wayne Probasco, board attorney, and Keith Combes, board member, listen to a discussion concerning voting district boundaries. 2. Proposed budget changes are presented to the board by Steve Michelle, board president, as James Shandy, director of financial affairs, and Phyllis Roney, board clerk, take notes. 3. Comparing a proposed policy with the district policy manual at a regular meeting are board members John Crow and director of curriculum Garth Renken. 4. "I have not visited many classes so I judge other teachers by their attitudes, professional interests, and knowledge. I think our staff is tops," stated Mrs. Carolyn Jones, social studies teacher and the 1979 Kansas Teacher of the Year.

To learn, each person must be taught and the teachers at WRHS provided one of the most important contacts with the formal learning process. For some students the three years of high school ended their educational program; for others it provided the foundation for further career training. For all, it was an important three years in developing personal and social attitudes as they matured into young adults.

Teachers, counselors, and resource persons helped students learn to understand, to communicate, and to participate in the growing community which is their world. As staff members provided the learning foundations in and out of the classrooms, their attitudes towards the school and the community largely affected each student.

A diverse curricular program and an extensive activity schedule allowed each student to develop personal interests. For those with special needs, individual programs were designed to promote maximum achievement.

1. WRHS music instructors Mr. Gerald Goacher and Mr. Clifford Manning participate in a regular staff meeting. 2. Discussing curriculum changes during a departmental meeting are Mr. Dick Evans, woodworking teacher; Mr. Leroy Russell, vocational agriculture instructor; and Mr. Don Schroder, auto mechanics teacher. 3. Mrs. Arlene Keltner, supervisor of special services, leads a discussion during a teacher inservice program. 4. Explaining attendance procedures at a staff meeting is Mr. Dick Patterson, director of student affairs.

EDUCATION

"I like helping people and enjoy the relationship I have with the students and staff; I can't be a teacher because I don't have the training, but I feel my work keeps me involved positively with the students, stated Mrs. Reva Mellies, Rural matron.

The support staff provided the environment and assistance to promote positive learning within the school system. Secretaries assisted teachers and staff members in the daily business of school operations, handling records, receipts, and communications. The custodial and maintenance staff promoted building and facility preservation from daily clean-up to major summer repair. Daily preparation and serving of lunch was handled by the kitchen staff.

Additional student aid was the responsibility of the school health services staff. Besides daily health care the school nurse and health clerk supervised regular testing programs and maintained records necessary for state requirements.

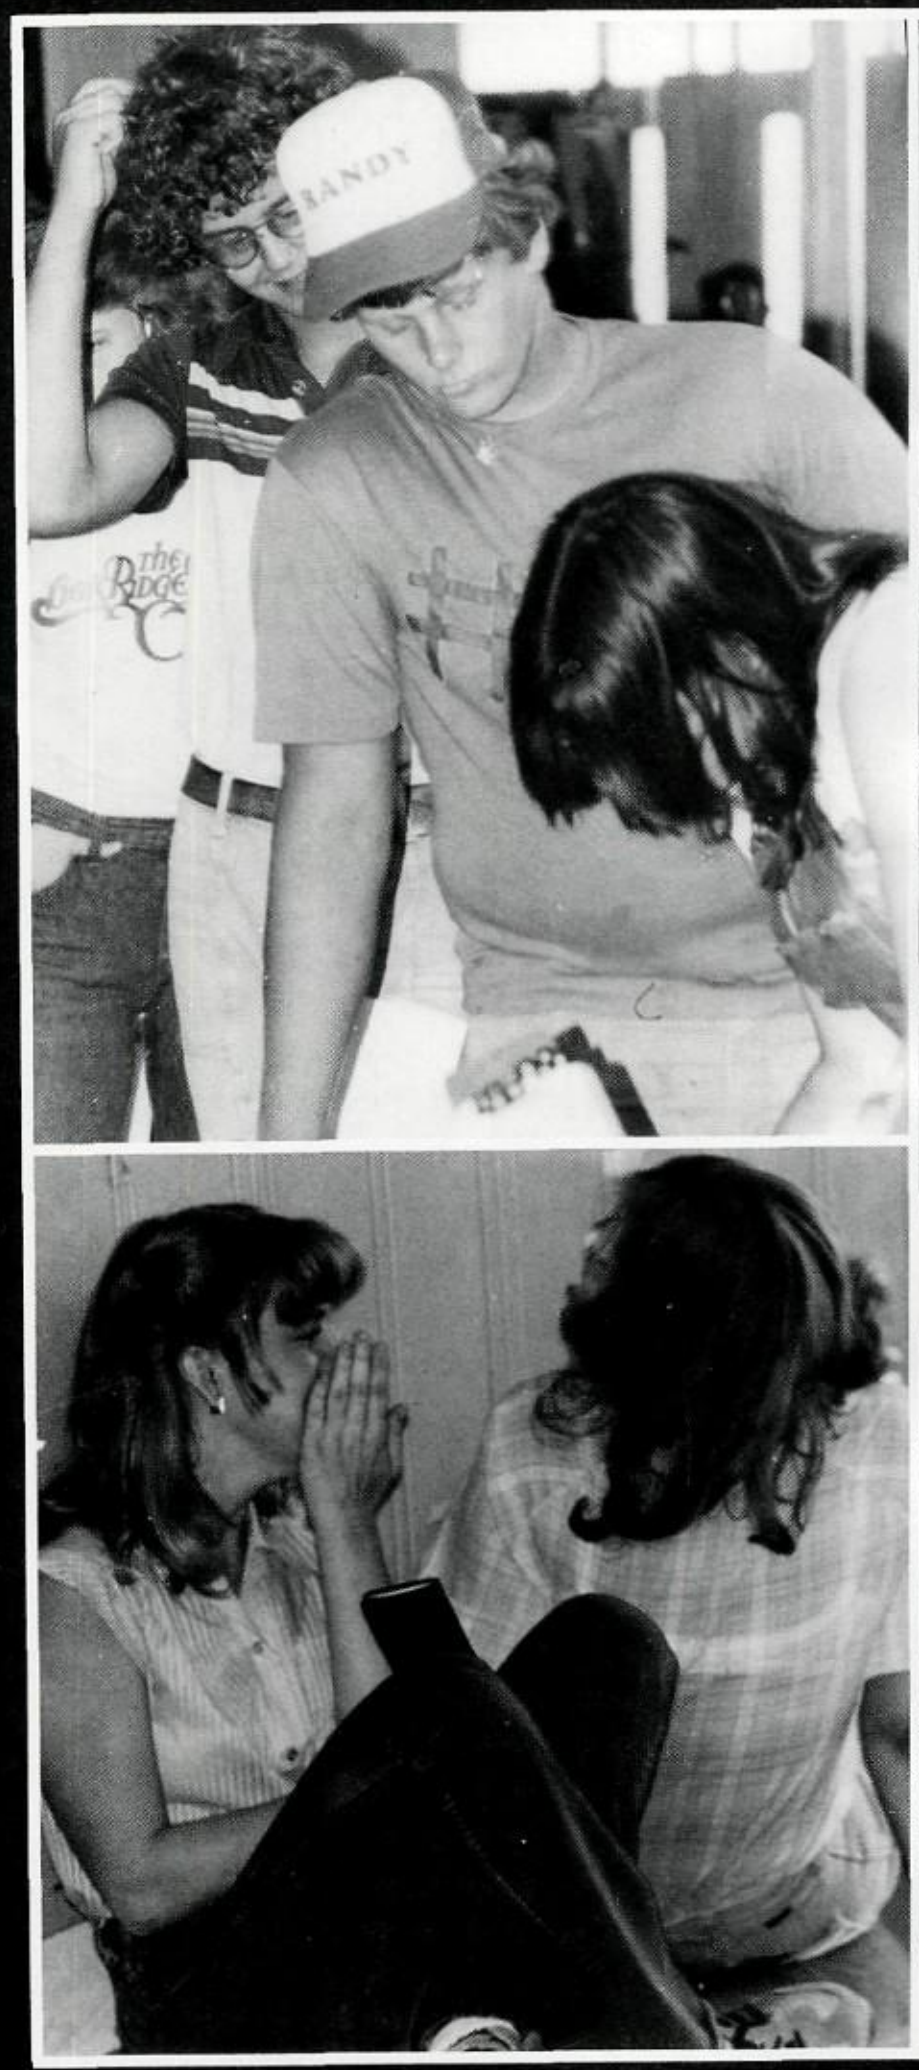
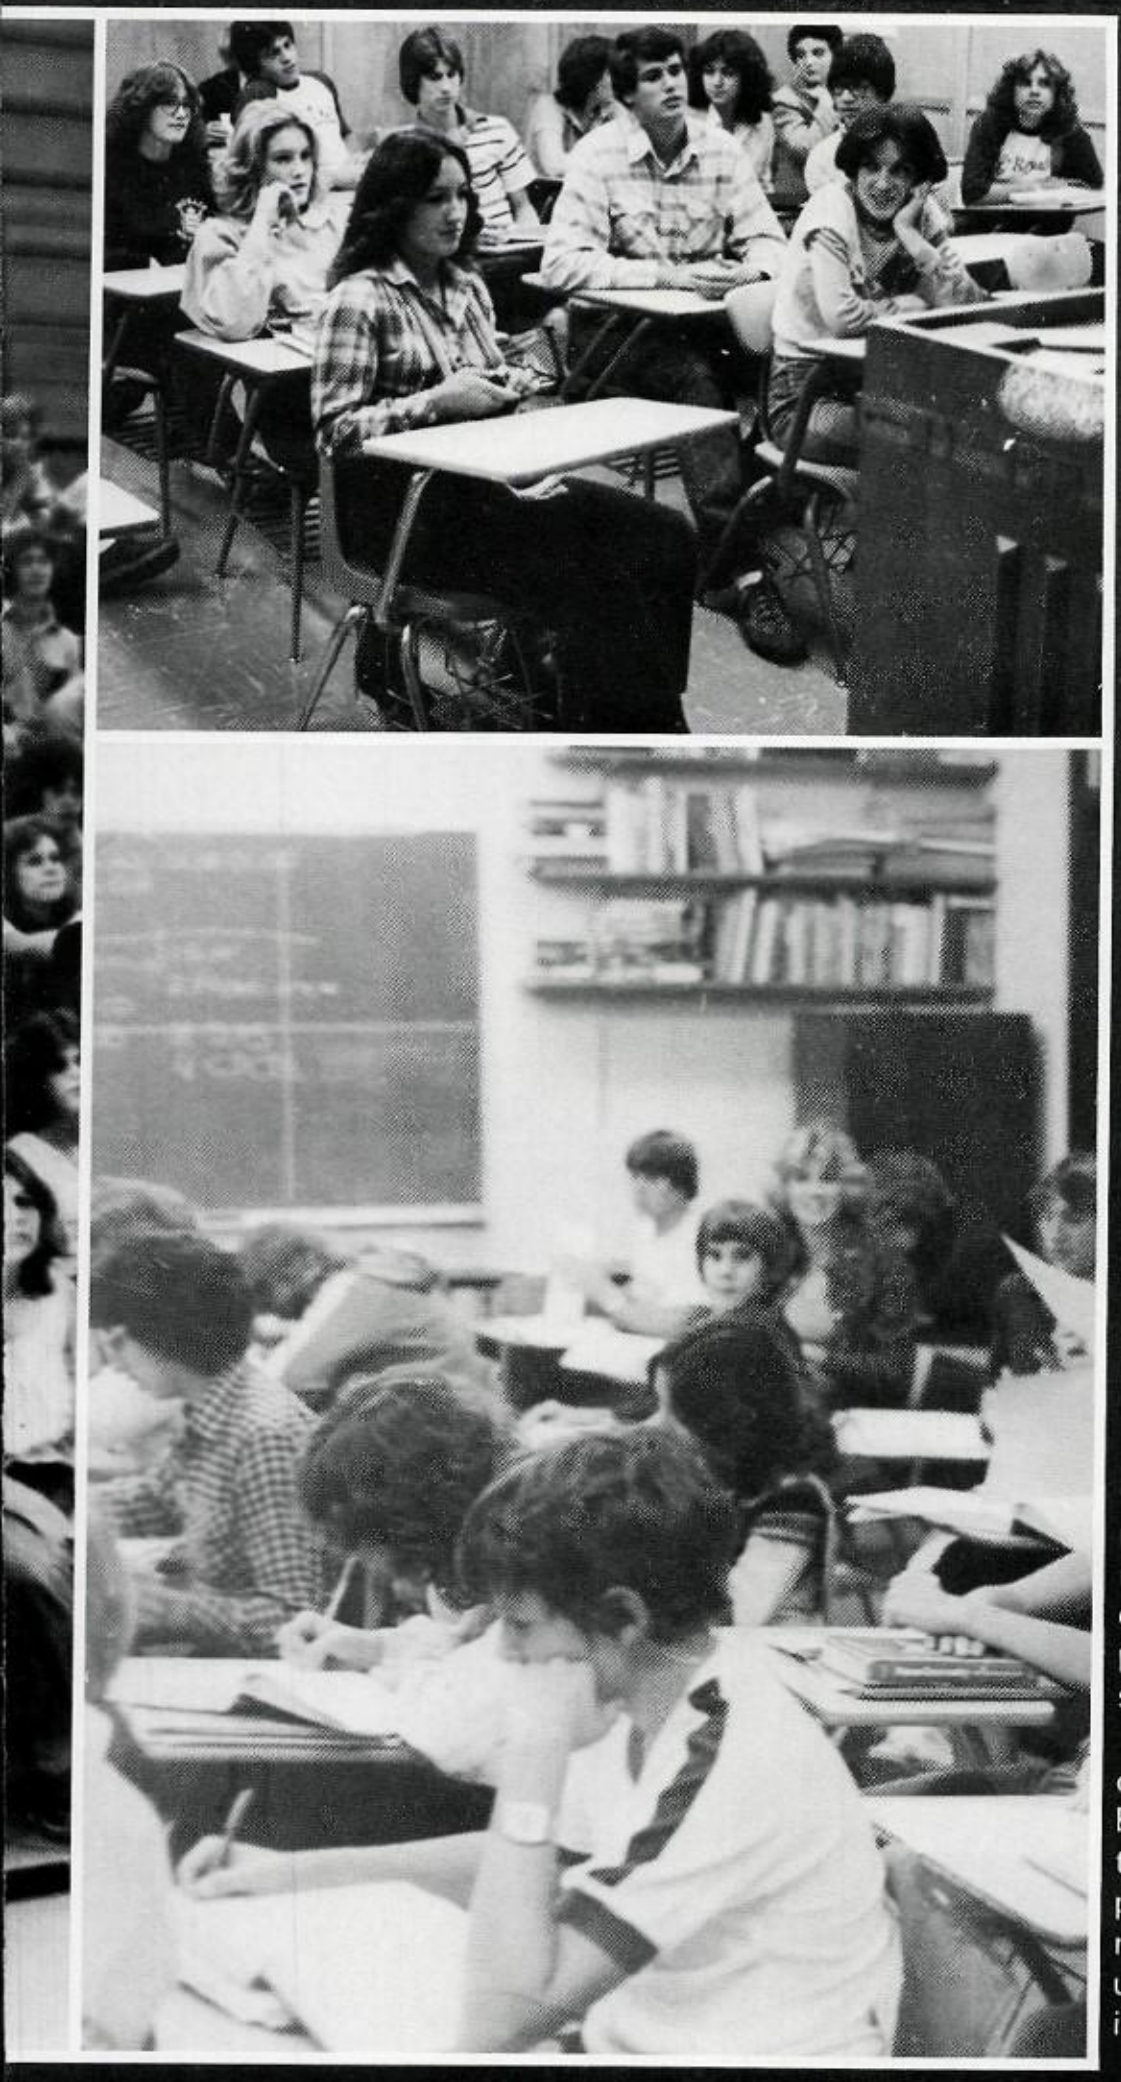
INDIVIDUALITY EMPHASIZED IN DEVELOPMENT



OF PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS AS STUDENTS LEARN TO LIVE IN EVER-CHANGING ENVIRONMENTS.



"The atmosphere provided for student development is really good and the program here at Rural has given me self-respect, confidence, and discipline," commented Dana Book, senior.

At the beginning of the school year, many kids find themselves learning to live as individuals by developing self-confidence in their decisions and gaining new friends through relationships in the various activities offered.

Starting the year as underclassmen, sophomores find it necessary to develop and grow in order to cope with the new experiences of high school life. Facing new frustrations and reaching for personal goals are part of their development during their first year at high school.

Being "superiors" to the sophomores but still one class below the seniors, junior students show the growth and responsibilities needed to help them make the challenging decisions to prepare them for their future.

Facing their last year of high school, seniors provide leadership to the underclassmen. Their busy schedule includes a variety of experiences which help them prepare for the necessary decisions they soon have to make.

As each student became his own person, he or she also became an important part of the school. Selected interests promote learning—learning to respect oneself, learning to understand others, and learning to accept new ideas.

SOPHOMORES LEARN TO LIVE AS INDIVIDUALS

"All the teachers have been very helpful in coping with adjustments and difficulties. Being a sophomore is extremely frustrating," stated one sophomore student.

As sophomores entered Washburn Rural for their first year, each one learned that every person is an individual. Individually they faced the responsibility of setting and achieving personal goals while establishing their role as a member of Rural's youngest, but largest class, with 250 members.

Individual experiences included friendships, sharing lockers, doing assignments, and finding new frustrations. Students also found that successes were very much a part of a sophomore year.

Those who chose to join activities became more aware of the responsibilities of being a member of the group. These experiences introduced many changes into their lives.

Attending meetings, practicing regularly in music and athletics, and working on club projects or fund raising activities demanded individual commitment and effort to promote group success.

The most frustrating experience of Joni Huffman's sophomore year was, "when I walked into the wrong classroom and sat down one day. Then I looked around and realized where I was. Whoops!"

Being a sophomore can be very frustrating, but also very rewarding to the students that decide they really do fit in.

JUNIORS RETURNED TO HIGH SCHOOL READY

"By being guided in what I need for the future, the curricular program at Rural has helped me learn to be better adjusted and happier with the goals I've set for myself," remarked Terri Teal, junior.

Juniors returned to Rural to face new responsibilities. One of the major tasks placed upon them was participating in the magazine sales in order to raise money for the junior/senior prom. The total amount raised was $2200, with Loyal Morgan as top sales person. Other top winners were Melodie Springer and Leeta Sanders.

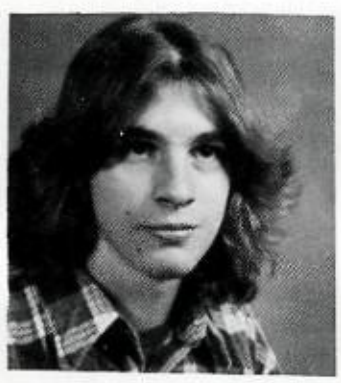
This year's prom was held on May 2 at the Arab Temple, featuring the band "Harlow."

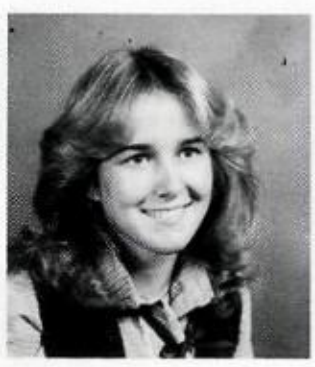
Juniors planning to further their education prepared themselves by taking the PSAT/NMSQT test. The test enabled the juniors to find out how they rank scholastically among the nation's students and introduced them to college entrance exams they will take as seniors.

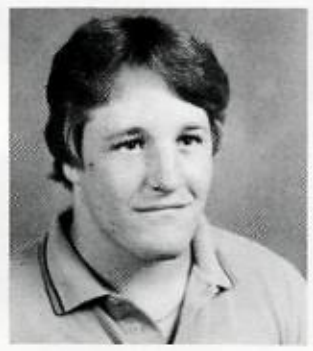
"Rural has given me a sense of reponsibility and pride in my achievements," stated Margaret Smith, junior.

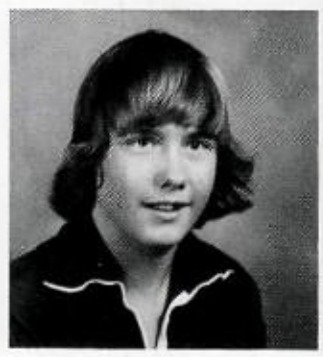
With the 1980-81 school year being their first year as high school upperclassmen, juniors accepted the title along with the many responsibilities and challenges that went with it.

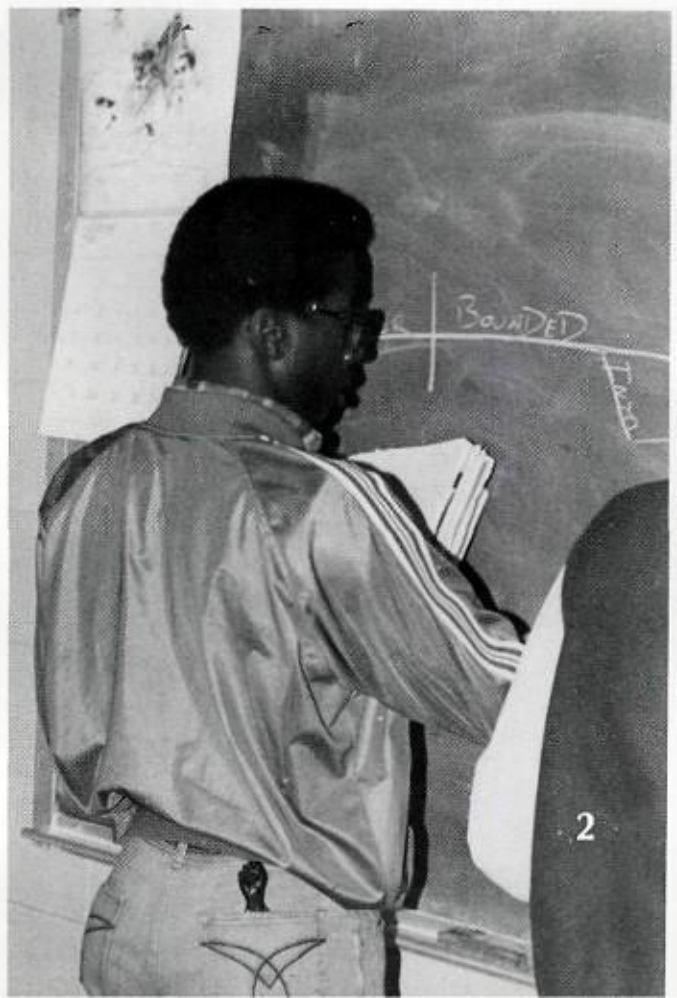
As the year came to a close, juniors were faced with the expectations of being seniors, which included making plans for the future.

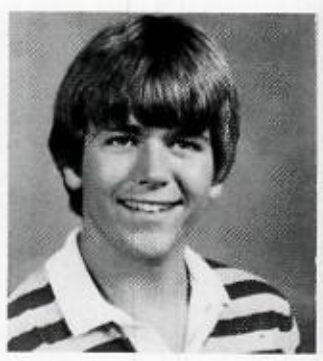












1. This years junior class officers are Leslie Casson, Secretary; Joel Fitzgibbons, Vice-President; Kelly Ross, Social Chairman; and Becky Bromich, President. 2. Diagramming a sentence on the chalkboard during English is junior Vince Arnold.

WHILE

The atmosphere provided at Rural for student development is really good and the major contribution that the program has given me was self-confidence, respect, and discipline,'' remarked Dana Book.

Many events marked the final year of high school for seniors. As the end grew closer, seniors began to realize that they were being required to make more important decisions. College and career seminars were held to give aid to students undecided about future plans. College bound students prepared themselves for further education by taking ACT and SAT test, which are required for entry into many of the colleges. Other seniors made many of their occupational choices as they learned to live.

Senior anticipation grew as the time came to order invitations, to be fitted for caps and gowns, and to make plans for the long awaited junior-senior prom held May 2 at the Arab Shrine Temple. Graduating students and their parents attended Baccalaurete on May 17 at Rural's gymnasium. Reverend Harold Cooper of Countryside United Methodist Church was the featured speaker.

For the first time, commencements exercises were held away from Rural. Because of the heat and overcrowdedness, seniors graduated at the Municipat Auditorium in Topeka. Feelings of accomplishment were mixed with feelins of regret as seniors attended graduation May 20, featuring Dr. James McCain, former Kansas State University president.

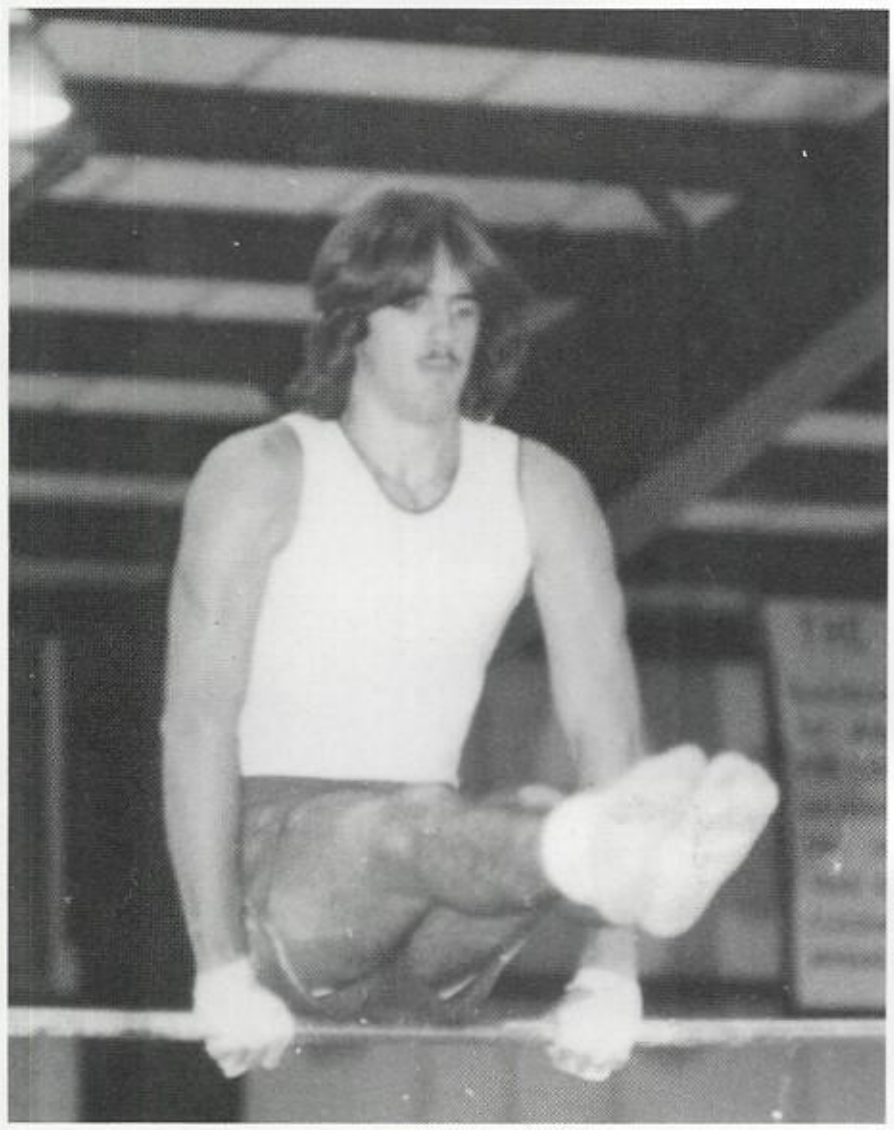
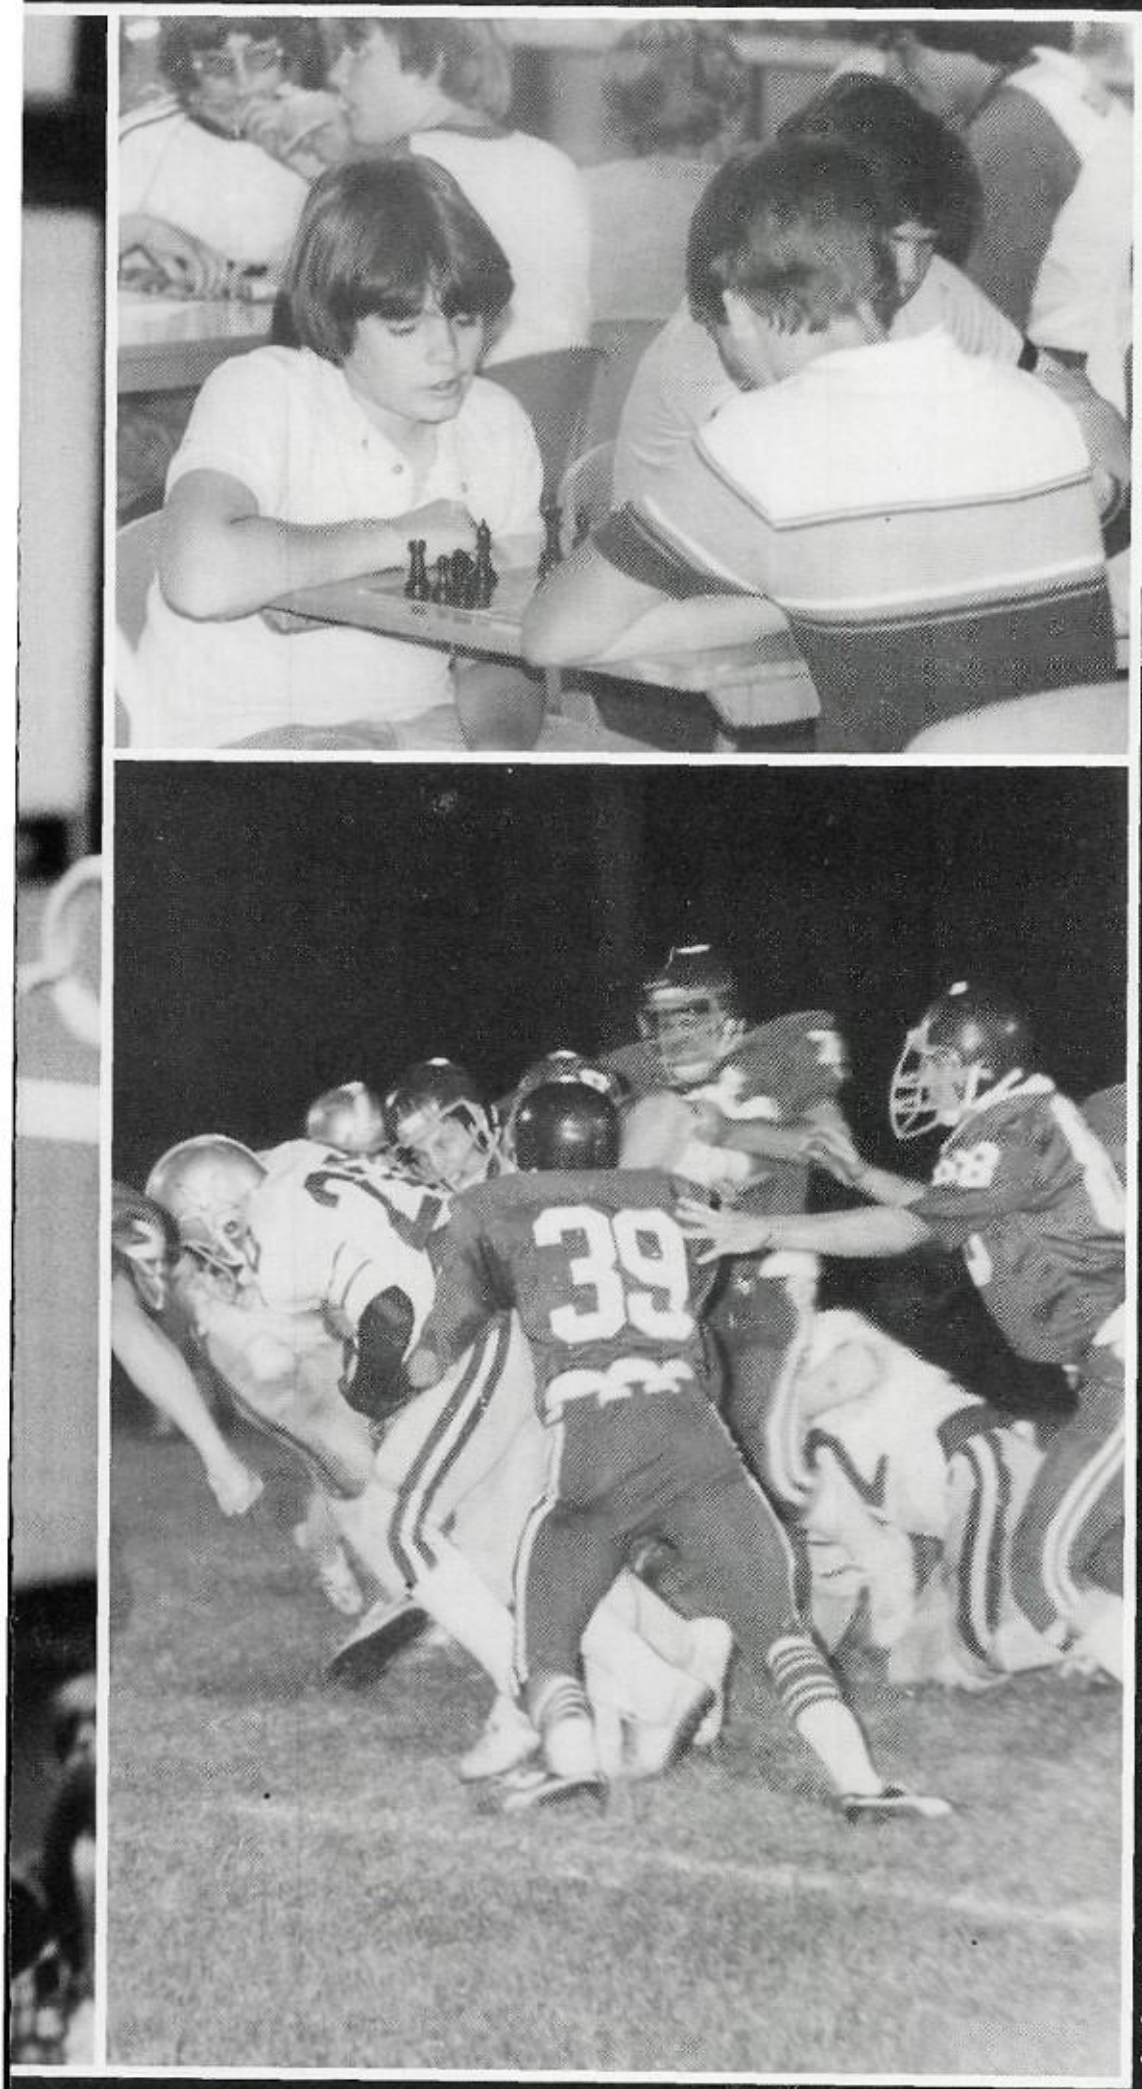
FRIENDSHIP AND COOPERATION PROVIDED BY



INVOLVEMENT IN EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES WHICH AID IN TOTAL PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT.



"Extracurricular activities have helped me understand that life is full of ups and downs. Win is to try for even higher goals and lose is for trying again," stated senior David Bidwell.

Learning to live through participation in various extra-curricular activities provides many opportunities for students to get involved in the school and meet new people. Learning to accept individual responsibilities in the group promotes the succes of the organization. Cooperation and self-discipline develops from people joining togeher to reach a common goal.

Members of a team must unite personal efforts toward a single challenge just as participants in a club share responsibilities to complete group projects. Learning individual parts leads the total group to success in music and drama.

Extracurricular activities gives students confidence and allows them to express themselves and achieve personal goals well as contribute to the group.

Preparing for future encounters is one of the more important aspects of working together. Each seemingly unimportant event may bring a better insight to a persons future and a clearer understanding of the world around him.

"Participating in extracurricular activities, whether they are school related or not is a good way to meet new personalities and develop new skills," added Mary Smith, senior.

SERVICE AND COMPETITION HIGHLIGHT YEAR

"FBLA is a good experience for those looking for a business career. It has made me aware of the things that you have to do to become a successful business person," explained senior Nancy Keegan.

During the 20th Anniversary of Washburn Rural's Future Business Leaders of America Club, students participated in many activities.

In October, some of the members attended a one-week Mountain Plains Conference in Wyoming. Others went to Yellowstone for a two-day leadership session, and in November the club attended Shawnee Heights' FBLA Night. Thirteen members of the club competed in State FBLA Conference at Emporia in March.

Future Medical Careers Club is an organization designed to help students who plan to follow a career in the medical field. This year's major project was to sponsor a blood bank on May 12. Held in the library, the blood bank enabled students, teachers, and patrons to donate blood to their church, professional association, or any other group on account at the Topeka Blood Bank. FMCC members also took a field trip to the Topeka Blood Bank in preparation for the "donation day" at Rural.

"I enjoyed being president of National Honor Society because it gave me the opportunity to work with many different people," said Dawn Dow, senior.

National Honor Society members were seniors and juniors who have shown scholarship, leadership, and character. New members were nominated and elected by the staff at the end of the school year and inducted in April. It is organized under a charter grant by a national organization and provides services to the community.

During the year, the club sponsored a needy family and planned for the candlelight induction of the new members. Officers for the year were Dawn Dow, president; Linda Weddle, vice-president;Brenda Winsinger,secretary-treasurer; Cameron Dick, Student Council representative; and Jennifer Bicknell, historian.

Science Club is an organization which promotes interest in science-related fields. At the meetings, guest speakers discussed subjects ranging from saber-tooth tigers to viruses and cancer. Other club activities included the planning for the district-wide Science Fair and selling candy.

CULTURAL EXPERIENCES EMPHASIZED

"I think the clubs have been one of the most interesting experiences for me this year. In clubs, the students join together to plan activities, develop skills, to provide services, to express their feelings and motivations. In short, the clubs teach moral and ethical values that will be useful in students' future lives," stated Luis Fleitas, Washburn Rural's first AFS exchange student.

The AFS Foreign Language Club provided first-hand experience in learning and sharing cultures with the inclusion of the schools first official foreign exchange student. Programs and speakers at monthly club meetings provided for the sharing of ideas and also emphasized the importance of cultural developement.

Upward Bound Club's main goal of the year was to make its members aware of the contributions that minorities have made to society.

The clubs projects included student exchanges with Highland Park and Topeka High.

Officers of AFS were Larry Waggle, senior, president;Dagmar Kasper, junior, vice-president; Leslie Casson, junior, secretary; and Susan Ross, junior, treasurer. CHRISTIAN CLUBS AID WITH SPIRITUAL GROWTH

"I feel that each of these organizations is very worthwhile, because they serve two purposes. In helping others we all learn a little more about ourselves."

Hi-Y, Kayettes, and Campus Life are for teenagers who are interested in developing more self-awareness through God.

Hi-Y, designed to be a fellowship organization for young men, promoted discussions of personal views on moral and ethical problems concerning the world today.

Kayettes were involved in a number of activities. They started the year with a hay rack ride followed by a balloon sale at the first home football game. During the christmas season they sold candy canes and other activities which they sponsored were Heart Sister Week, in which they anonymously exchanged gifts; and planned the all school assembly.

Campus Life was a coeducational club that met outside of school every Thursday night. The club met at various students' houses. Activities included the annual wild goose chase, a burger bash, a ski trip to Colorado, and a Class Struggle night. Most of the Club meetings consisted of games and discussions.

ASSEMBLIES

Special assemblies and guest speakers, provided to broaden interests and entertain the student body, ranged from a jazz band to a comedian.

Father John Yadrich, from Christ the King Church was the speaker at Thanksgiving. He emphasized that we should be thankful for our relatives and friends throughout the entire year; not just at Thanksgiving time. He stressed the importance of not taking friends and family for granted.

One special assembly was a visit from the Emporia State University Jazz Band, following a clinic for band members. The group played a series of songs alternating with pieces played by the WRHS jazz band.

In October, Student Council sponsored a slave auction. StuCo members were sold to the highest bidder to raise money to sponsor needy families during the Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons. Student Council also sponsored an assembly starring Mr. David Naster, comedian. Naster, brother of social science teacher Mr. Mike Naster, entertained the student body with juggling acts, skits, and satires of television programs. He also chose students from the audience to help him with other tricks.

Other special assemblies included presentations by the WRHS choir, concert and stage band, and This Generation

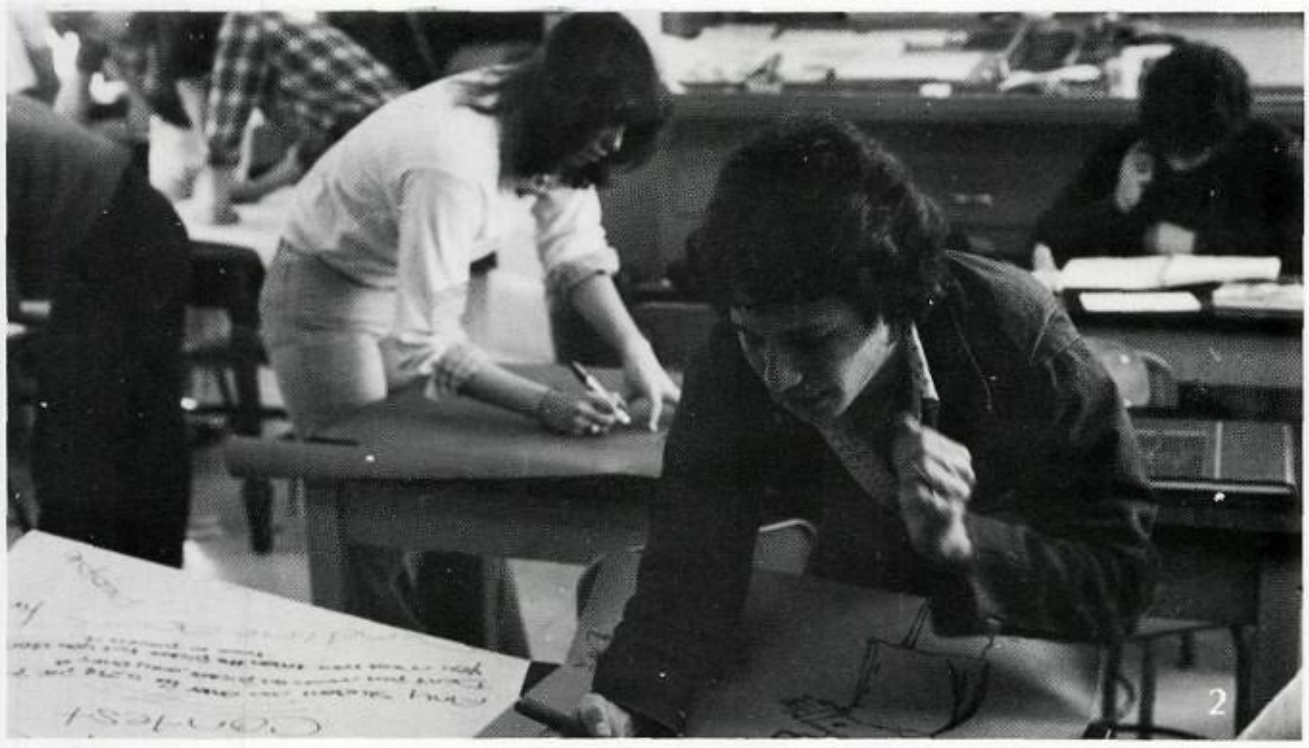
EMPHASIZED IN CLUB PROGRAMS, ACTIVITIES

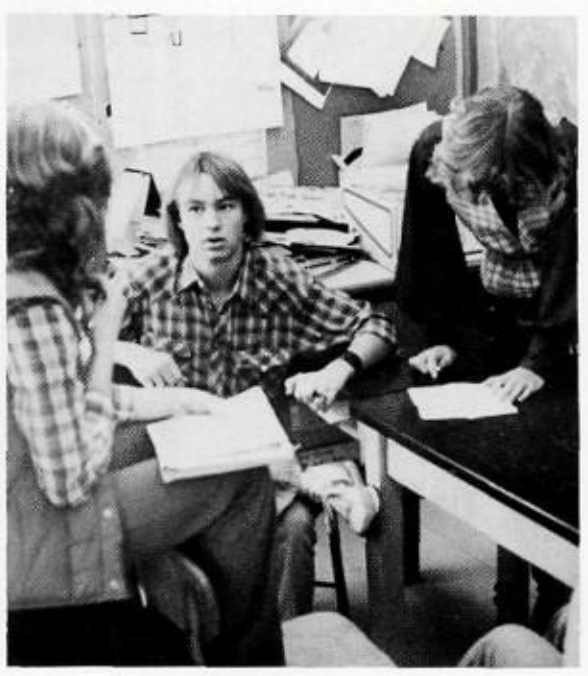


"Chess and Checkers is a mind challenging club, and I enjoy the challenge that a chess game offers," stated sophomore Walter Pursell.

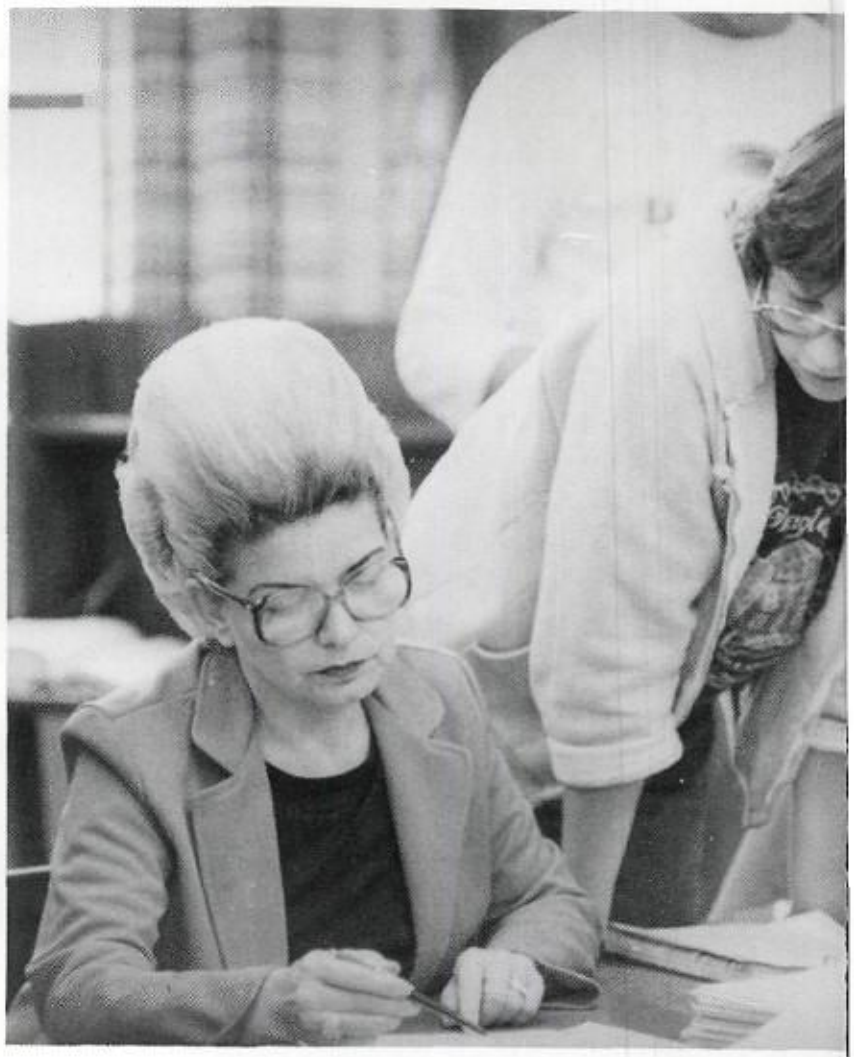
For beginners, Chess and Checkers offers the chance for students to learn the games and challenges them to tackle more experienced players as the year progresses. Following the recreational and learning sessions at the fall meetings, club members move into free-challenge and tournament competition. Sophomore Greg Hanna was one of the finalists of the March tournaments.

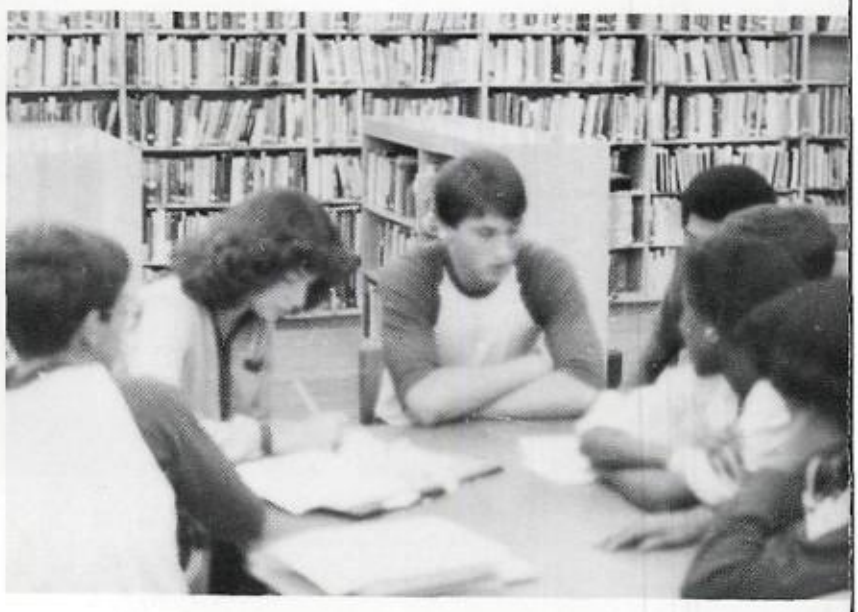
Designed for students interested in learning more about photography practices and techniques, Photography Club featured programs sharing the experiences of professionals and amateurs. The major project of the club was sponsoring the annual all-school photography contest, open to entries from the entire student body. Judged by a person from the professional field, the winning entries were displayed at the WRHS Acheivement Night in May.

A program highlight for the members was a slide presentation on posing subjects for photos by Adrian Barnette, freelance photographer.



STUDENT PARTICIPATION STRESSED IN MODEL





1. Looking over resolutions for Model United Nations programs is Mandy Flyntz, sophomore. 2. Mrs. Lee Kinney, Model UN sponsor, helps sophomore Jennifer Johnson during a practice session. 3. Dale Levering and Dana Book, seniors, read over information for Model UN. 4. Student Council members talk over plans for the Christmas Dance. 5. Leading a group in discussion about ways to improve student participation is senior Mike Franklin. 6. Money raising projects are discussed at a regular StuCo meeting. 7. StuCo President Matt Masilionis senior, explains while Vice-President Curtis Sneden, junior, looks over notes. 8. Student Council officers record a vote during a meeting.

UN

"Serving as an officer in Student Council and participating in Model United Nations have really been great experiences. I feel they have both helped me a lot," stated Matt Masilionis, senior, on his experiences in StuCo and Model UN.

Student Council and Model UN are organizations which deal in the fields of social science and international relationships, respectively. Student Council started off the year with a welcome dance and mixer for the sophomores. They also sponsored families at Thanksgiving and Christmas. Another StuCo sponsored event for the year was the Christmas Dance.

Model United Nations, formed after the United Nations, emphasizes debate and discussion in a simulated open-forum situation. The delegates participated in conferences at Emporia, Washburn University, and an advanced session at Kansas University.

Mrs. Lee Kinney, Model UN sponsor, also served as head StuCo sponsor. Other Student Council sponsors were Mr. Bob Gladfelter, Mr. Cliff Hess, and Mrs. Karen Terry.

"There's a Place in the World for a Gambler" is performed by Ann Walker, sophomore, Suzy Huston, Natalie Talbott, and Lori Walker, juniors, and Amy Talbott, sophomore. 7. Senior Ed Brackett sings his version of "Misty." 8. Keeping with the theme, members of Treble Clef Club sing "Somewhere Over the Rainbow."

VARIETY SHOW FEATURES RAINBOW THEME

"I definitely think that the Washburn Rural Variety Show this year was the best since I have participated. It certainly is a lot of fun even though I missed seeing some of the old faces from last year," said Tina Schreiner, senior.

Featuring individual and group acts emphasizing "The Rainbow Connection" theme, the 1980 annual Painted Rhythm Variety Show played six nights to full-house audiences in the Little Theater. Solo and group musical numbers were complimented by comedy routines such as senior Eddie Brackett's blackouts and the "Chicken Song" performed by the men from This Generation.

Toppers Stage Band opened the show and This Generation, Treble Clef Club, Concert Choir, and a selection of soloists appeared on the program.

Over 100 students created the 300 pieces displayed during the Art Fair which included jewelry, ceramics, charcoals, pencil and ink drawings, and paintings. For the first time the art displays were set up in the library to provide more room and better lighting. In addition to show nights, the Art Fair was open to students and visitors during the school day.

PROGRAM

"Football provides good experience to handle pressure. I had a lot of fun in football this year, but most importantly it helped me develop in all aspects. I've learned that if you want to get ahead you have to pay the price and stick with it," said senior, Kevin McCarter.

The Junior Blues finished the season with a 6-3 record losing only to Highland Park, Emporia and Leavenworth. The Blues finished third in total defense giving up 1886 yards and only 96 points, the least in the city.

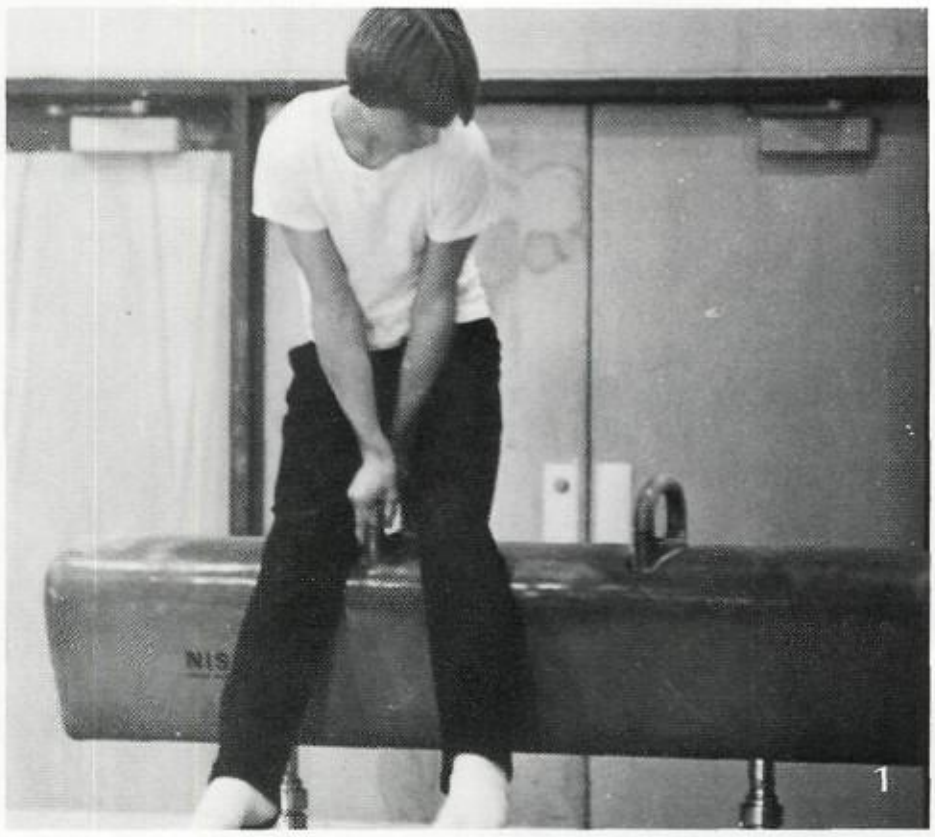
Greg Golden, junior finished second in the city in scoring with nine touchdowns, fourth in punting, and ninth in rushing.

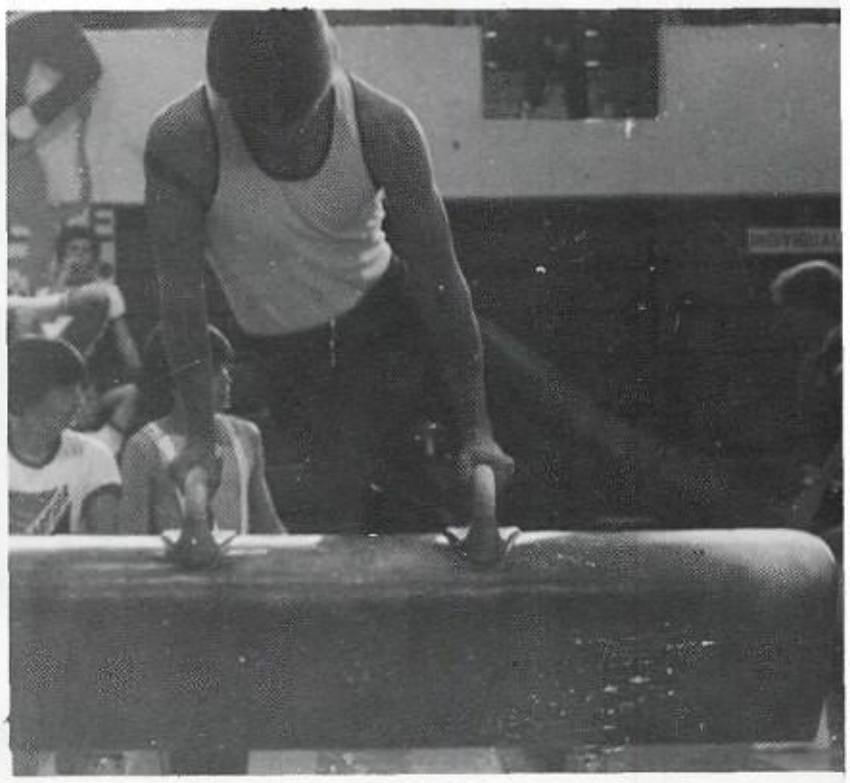
John Hughes, junior, finished fourth in passing as he completed 29 of 63 attempts for 480 yards and four touchdowns.

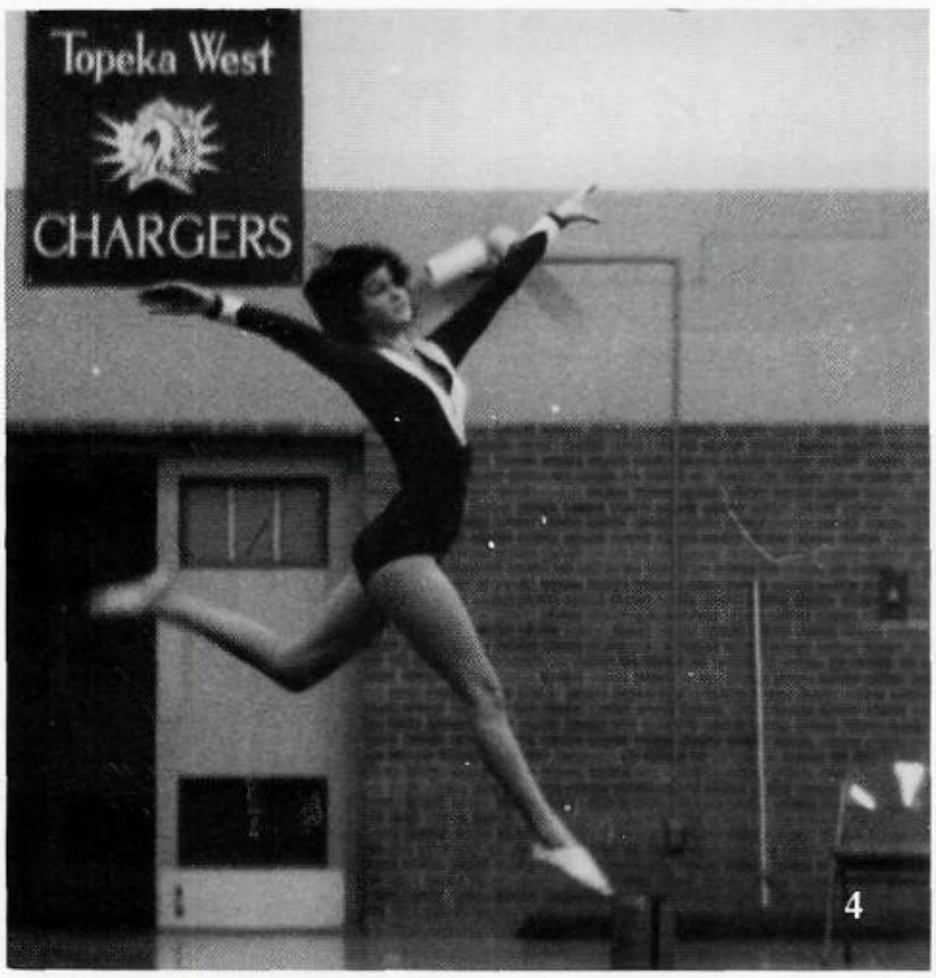
Seniors Bryant Combes, at defensive end and fullback, and Tom Dultmeier, at offensive guard and defensive tackle, were elected to the Topeka Daily Capital's All City Team.

The sophomores ended their five-game season undefeated. Highlighting their year was the win over Highland Park 9-6 in a double overtime.

YOUNG GYMNASTICS TEAM QUALIFIES ONE FOR







1. Junior Mark Shreve practices on the pommel horse. 2. Sophomore Chris Munk competes on the pommel horse at State in Newton. 3. As part of his routine freshman Eric Munk performs an L-Support. 4. STATE MEET

"Spot me coach, I'm gonna go for it," was probably the most repeated quote during the gymnastics season. If the gymnast doesn't have faith in his or her coaches ability to spot a trick, then the gymnastics potential can be significantly underminded.

Despite a lack of depth and considerable inexperience, both teams displayed promise. Freshman Eric Munk performed well in all around. Sophomore Bret Bromich, placed third in the city on paralled bars, while Chris Munk placed second on pommel horse. Chris also placed sixth on pommel horse at regionals to qualify for state. Sophomores Steve Conroy, Sean Roberts, and Mike Chandler provided team support in floor exercise, vaulting, pommel horse, and high bar respectively.

The girls team was short on numbers but blessed with potential. Freshman Kelly Norris and Sindy Friedli performed with impressive poise in the tough all around slot, while sophomores Judy Bergman and Cherie Heibert displayed outstanding ability and maturity in every event. Debra Hayes specialized on balance beam and places to challenge for an all around spot next year.

VOLLEYBALL TEAM TAKES FOURTH IN STATE

"I feel that I have learned a lot of new skills, not only from Ms. Lasswell, but also from the other members of the team. It's great to see a group of people pulling for each other the way we did," commented Stacey Wendland, sophomore.

Teamwork led Washburn Rural's 1980 volleyball team to their first state appearance in five years.

The girls started the season before school began with two practices each day to prepare for their first matches. They went to the Centennial League Tournament with a 14-8 record and came out with a first place trophy and the momentum to carry them to the sub-state.

The Lady Blues won their sub-state by beating Shawnee Heights and host Emporia. The Blues traveled to Newton for the State Tournament to face Parsons in the first round. Rural beat them in two games, and then lost their next match to the eventual champions, Bishop Miege. They also lost to Hays to place fourth in State.

CROSS COUNTRY EARNS HONORS

"This year, with the addition of many new sophomores who helped us a lot, we started getting up into the front of the pack and began to win some meets," stated Conrad Rimmer, senior and three-year member of the cross country team.

The Junior Blues Cross Country squad capped one of its more successful seasons by sending George Reich, senior; Kelly Ross and Kristy Stone, juniors; and Chris Currie, sophomore, to the State meet in Manhattan. In the girls' race, Ross, running in only her third meet, placed 24 and took forty seconds off the school record. Stone also finished under the old record as she placed 43. In the boys' race, Currie used a strong second mile to recover from a fall suffered in the early going and took ninth, while Reich, hampered by a sore knee, finished 24.

The team also did well throughout the year. On September 20, the squad traveled to the Santa Fe Trail Invitational and returned with its first first place finish since 1972. Then, on October 2, the harriers won their own WRHS Invitational, with Reich placing second.

RURAL S VARSITY ROUNDBALL SQUAD ENDS

"We did not reach the goals we had set at the beginning of the year, but we beat some really strong teams," stated senior Kevin Crow at the end of the varsity basketball season.

Rural's boys played inconsistently throughout the season, which led to their disappointing record. They started off well and managed to pull some key upsets, but they couldn't hold the momentum over the entire season and ended with an even 10-10 record.

Finishing the season for the varsity squad was a 69-54 loss to the Hayden Wildcats March 5 in the semi-finals of the substate playoffs.

The junior varsity boys tallied a more impressive season, finishing with a 11-5 record. The sophomores were less successful, ending their season at 9-10, including a fourth place finish in the sophomore tournament hosted by Seaman.

GIRLS BASKETBALL TEAM

"After three years on the basketball team, we feel that we have shown a lot of progress and improvement. Our determination to win and hard work were the two major things that helped us finish our season so well," stated senior Robin Parodi, team captain.

The Lady Junior Blues, following an erratic start, finished the season with an 8-14 record. Dedication and hard work set them up for the substate tournament where they dropped Hayden and toppled Shawnee Heights with a last second shot to qualify for state competition. In the first state appearance for a Washburn Rural girls basketball team, they fell to top ranked MacPherson, who ended up as state champions.

Seniors Tami Poling, Parodi, and Stacy Shofner, earning their third letters, led the team in scoring, assists, and playmaking during several games.

The junior varsity girls team, composed almost entirely of sophomores, felt that they had an exceptional season because of their dedication and hard work. They finished the year with 11 wins and only 5 losses.

FRIESWYK CROWNED QUEEN OF COURTS POLING

"I enjoyed myself. The music for the Queen of Courts dance was great to dance to," said D'Ann Ludwig.

The dance followed Rural's 61-47 basketball victory over Highland Park on February 13 and featured the theme "One in a Million." Seniors Christine Frieswyk and Kevin Crow were honored at halftime of the game as Queen of Courts royalty. Attendants were seniors Robin Parodi, and Sherry Crow and the honor guard was formed by cheerleaders, pom pon corps, and the members of the banner squad. Music for the dance was provided by "Zodiac" a disc jockey.

Rural's candidate, senior Tami Poling, was crowned queen of the Capital Invitational Tournament by the reigning Miss Kansas, LeeAnn Folsum. Each of the participating basketball teams selected a nominee and the queen was chosen by the University of Kansas basketball players.

"Intramural basketball was fun. It gave me a chance to be with my friends and have a good time," said Wenona Hollinger, sophomore, who shared the feelings of many of the students who played on an intramural team this year.

The 1981 season was unique in that it was the first year that girls played. They organized their own teams and played against only other girl teams. The Marlinettes earned first place by beating the Touch-N-Goes in the finals of the tournament.

Boy's intramurals was topped off this season by having the final game played infront of the student body. The Marlins nipped the Aeros by 2 points to finish in first place.

"We had a lot of sophomores come out this year, so I think we can look for a better and more experienced wrestling team next year." commented head coach Mr. Ray Glaze.

This year's team was very young and consequently did not have a very successful season.

Sophomore Mark Smerched was the only member of the team to qualify for sub-stateby placing fourth in the regional meet.

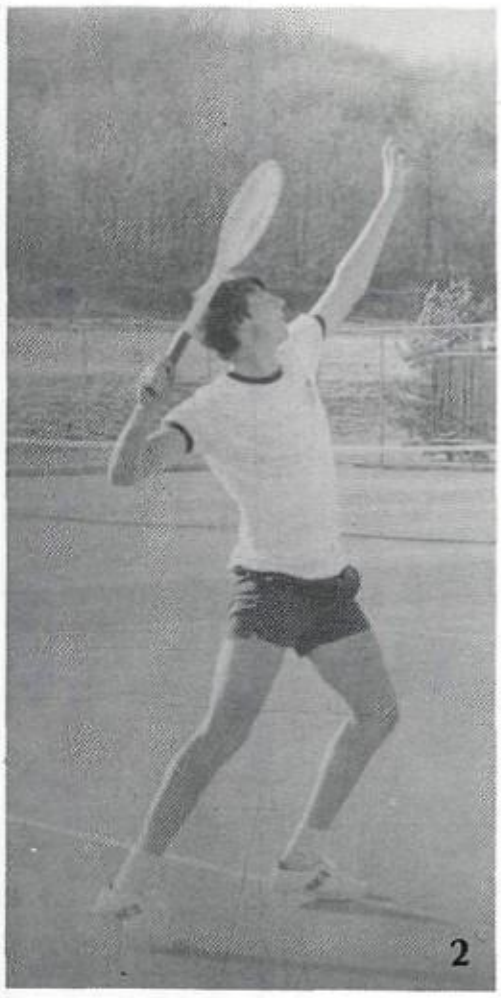
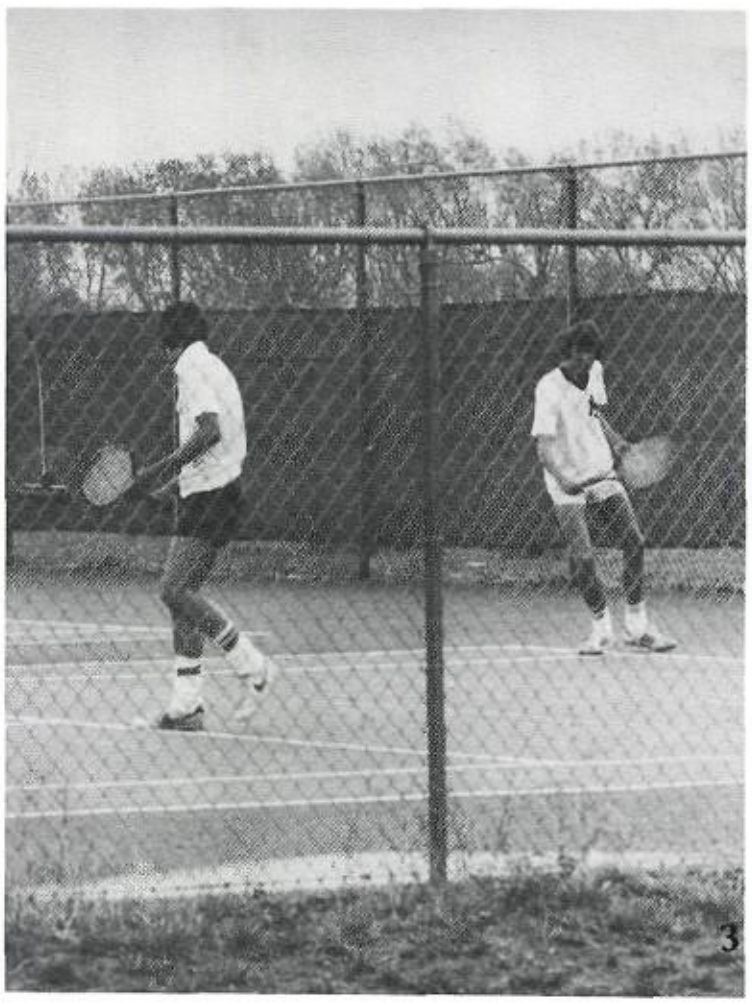
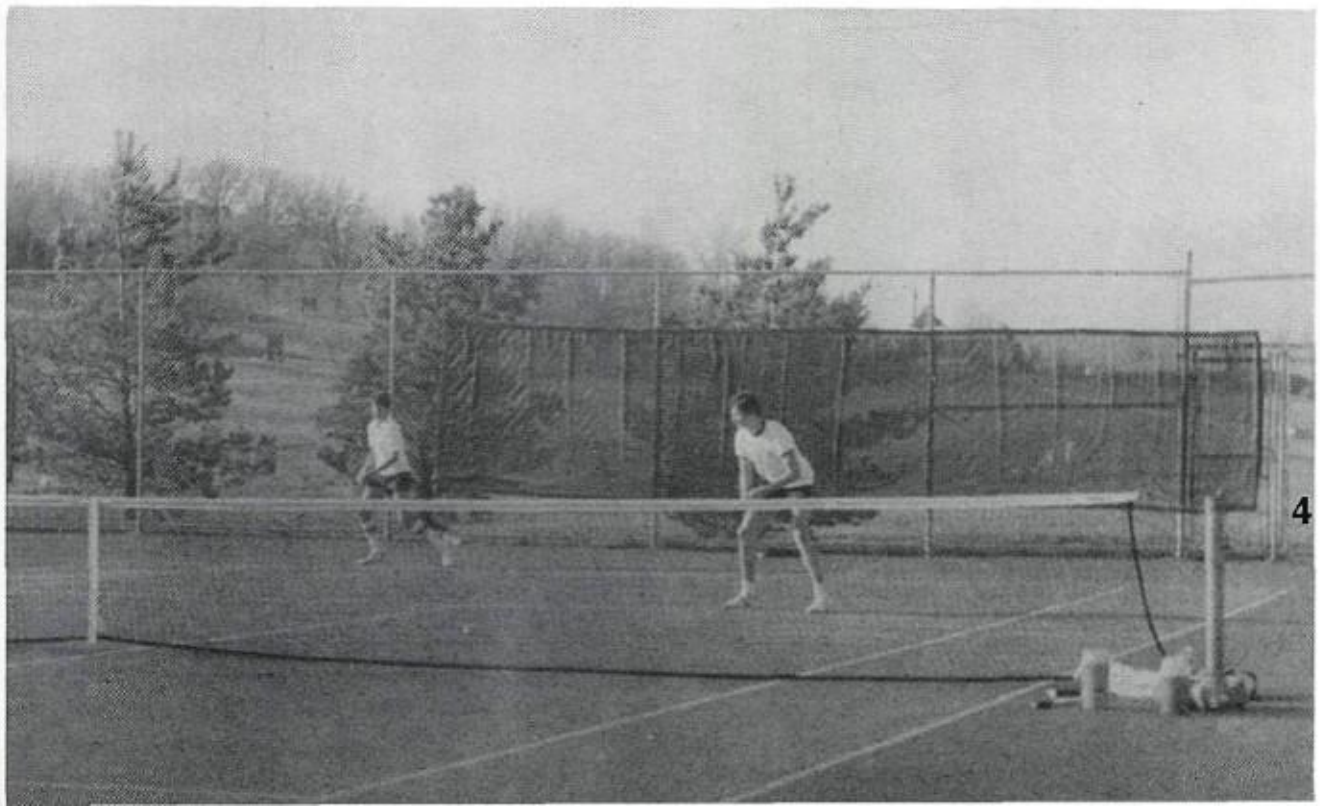
HAVE BEST SEASONS IN WASHBURN'S HISTORY







"I think we did really well this year, especially because this was only the second year for the girls tennis team and I appreciate the support Mr. Bob Gladfelter gave us," said sophomore Erica Anderson.

The girls tennis team finished a very successful season by sending two players to State tournament in Newton. The doubles team of Anderson and Jennifer Pasley, sophomore, placed seventh out of sixteen teams.

Highlighting the rest of the year was first place at the Centennial League tournament, first at Gardner Invitational, and first at Baldwin. The squad also placed third at Washburn Rural's Invitational tournament and third at the City Invitational.

This years boys tennis team made Washburn Rural history by having the winningest season ever. The 1981 team won more tournaments in half the season than any other team did the whole season.

The team, coached by Mr. Gladfelter, won the Gardner, Baldwin, Seaman, and Washburn Rural tournaments. They also placed third at Manhattan. With three tournaments left, their win-loss record is 28-2. Coach Gladfelter hopes to send at least three people to the state tournament.

"My participation in track was mostly self-motivated because I wanted to be involved in a sport in which my own ability would determine whether or not I would participate—and when," stated senior runner Mark Hunt.

Both track teams opened this year's season with three wins in their first three meets. The boys edged out Clay Center by two points in the opener at Chapman and the girls outdistanced all competitors in the opener at the Chapman Relays. The second meet at Seaman ended in an easy victory for the girls and found the boys sharing the first place honors with Hayden.

Top competitors started the year with wins and continued to improve during the season. Dana Hazen, senior, won the javelin throw consistently, including first place at the University of Kansas Relays, where he broke the state high school record with a throw of 224 feet.

Senior Doug Searcy also took several firsts in pole vault, and broke a number of meet records including a 14'6" vault at the Stanley-Blue Valley Relays, which broke Searcy's own school record. Relay teams including seniors Mark Hunt, Jeff Jackson, and George Reich placed regularly in the top three at most events.

Senior girls in the winning category included Robin Parodi with new school records in the high jump and long jump. Tami Poling won a number of medals in both high and low hurdles, two of her record events. Poling and Parodi joined Pearl Rovaris and Stacy Shofner on the record books in 400 and 1600 meter relay events.

Seniors were supported by a strong field of junior and sophomore competitors which carried both teams to strong positions in league and state competition.

GOLF TEAM

"I feel that activities such as the Variety Show and stage band have given me a taste of the atmosphere I want to be in when I leave school," stated senior Dana Book, this year's winner of the John Phillip Souza music award.

Rural students earned many special awards during the school year ranging from outstanding departmental awards to top honors in state and regional competitions.

Outstanding students were recognized in other areas by the school, community groups, and civic organizations. Departmental awards, promoted by the staff and Booster Club, were given at a special assembly in May.

Opening the season with an experienced squad, Rural golfers challenged all competitors in an effort to send the team and several individuals to state. Senior Kevin Crow held second leading medalist league honors in the season and junior Raegan Crow was second leading medalist in an early meet. Sophomore Larry Golden topped the WRHS Invitational as leading medalist.

Winning the Topeka Invitational over seven opponents moved the team to the Centennial League meet at the Topeka Public Golf Course.

"I tried out for Lotus Blossom, the female lead in Teahouse of the August Moon, because I thought it would be a real challenge. It was fun to portray a Geisha girl," stated Sharon Freel, senior.

Dramatics plays an important role in student and community entertainment at Washburn Rural High School, while providing the opportunity for students to develop pride and confidence in themselves and others. WRHS drama teacher, Mr. Bill Mills, directed the 1981 Spring Play, Teahouse of the August Moon, written by John Patrick.

The play, presented by a cast of thirty-eight members, played to full houses on March 18, 20, and dinner theatre night, Saturday, March 21. Dinner for Saturday's performance was prepared by the Old Way Station.

Teahouse of the August Moon, a comedy based on a post-war island of Okinawa, centered on the efforts of Col. Purdy III, played by Mike Knowles; Capt. Fisby, portrayed by Gregg Binkley; and Sgt. Gregovich, played by Jim Cunningham; officers of the United States Army, sent to civilize the uncivilized. But they found the task complicated by Sakini a clumsy interpreter and Lotus Blossom a very "respectable" Geisha girl.

DANCES PROVIDE MEMORABLE EXPERIENCES

"All the dances I went to were a lot of fun. They provided an excellent chance to get all my friends together and have a great time," said Angie Stephens, senior, on her experiences from Rural's dances.

Rural's traditional dances were sponsored by different organizations of the school. Instead of just having one mixer at the beginning of the year, the Student Council sponsored two mixers this year; one during the first week of school, and one held in early April. The mixers provided students with an opportunity to socialize and meet fellow students of WRHS.

The Christmas Dance, held December 13, was sponsored by the Student Council. "Starry, Starry Night" was the chosen theme and "RPS" provided the music.

"Celebration" was the chosen theme of the 1981 Junior/Senior Prom. The Prom was held May 2 at the Arab Shrine Temple, and the band was "Spring Fever."

1. Christmas Queen & King Suzy Kasper and Gregg Binkley, seniors stand after being crowned. 2. Pablo Delgado, junior, converses with his date at the Christmas dance. 3. Dancing at the Homecoming dance are Libby Sherwood, sophomore and Greg Wallace, senior. 4. Rural students have fun at the fall Student Council mixer. 5. 'Pausing between songs at the Christmas dance are Steve Conroy, sophomore and his date.

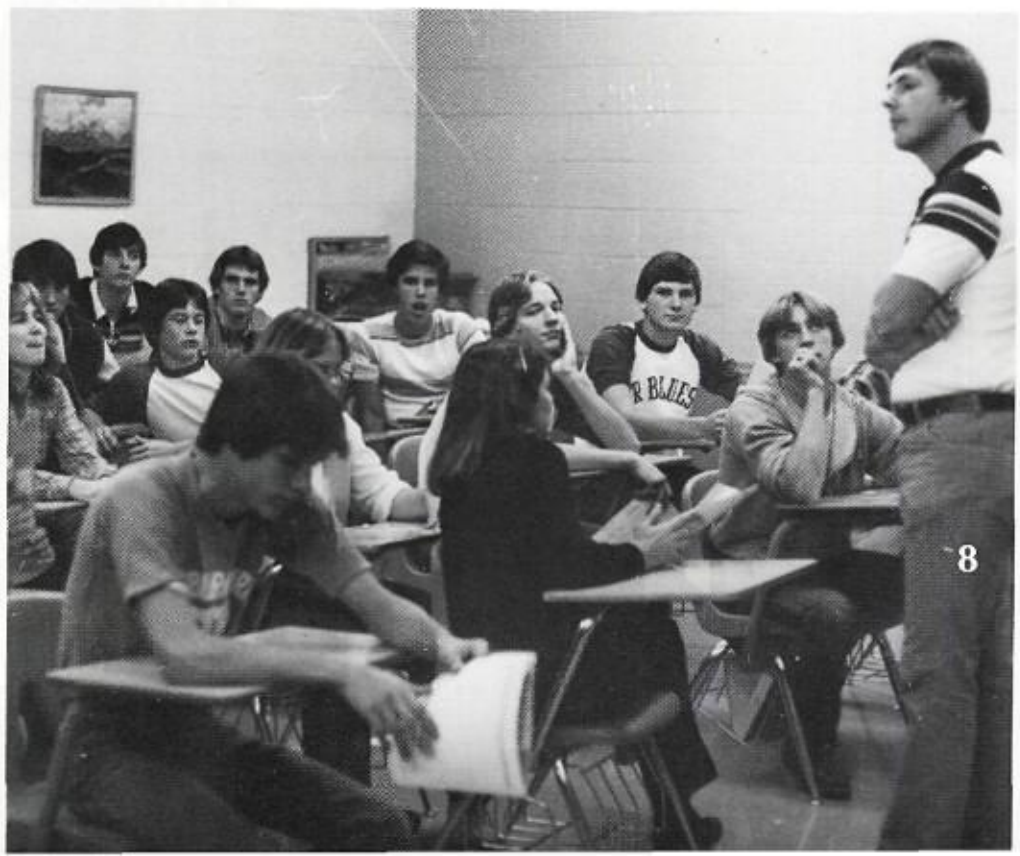
Spirited fans show enthusiasm during a Rural game. 10. Selling food at Booster Club's annual barbecue are members of Booster Club.



3

PARTICIPATION

"Spirit Club has provided a great way for me to show pride in our school and to have a fun time doing it," state Monica Schultz, senior.

Spirit Club, W-Club, and Booster Club were organizations which supported the various activities at Rural and promoted involvement and enthusiasm through their varied projects. Spirit Club boasted the largest membership of the three and encouraged total student body participation in the athletic program by planning pep assemblies and rallies. The club also sponsored Spirit Week and homecoming festivities, and a car caravan to the Shawnee Heights game during football season.

Designed to promote interest in athletics for both boys and girls who lettered in one or more varsity sports, W-Club featured area sports commentators and college athletes as speakers at some of its regular meetings. The club planned and participated in fund raisers to earn money to attend ballgames and other special events.

Parents and patrons joined Booster Club to actively support and encourage activity participation in all District 437 schools. They provided programs for home football and basketball games at Rural, sponsored Spirit Night prior to the beginning of football season, and hosted a watermelon feed and coffees following some home games. Funds raised were used to provide equipment and assistance for various activity programs in the schools.

CHEERLEADERS ENCOURAGE GAMES SPIRIT

"Through the past three years I've been a cheerleader, I feel that I've gained a lot of self-confidence and I'm glad I had the opportunity to help support our teams. It has been a lot of fun for me," said Christine Frieswyk, head varsity cheerleader.

During the summer the boys and girls varsity and the junior varsity cheerleaders attended a camp in Baldwin City. Each squad participated separately in cheering competition. The boys varsity squad was awarded three 'superior' ribbons, a spirit stick which was awarded by the vote of the whole camp, and was voted one of the top three squads in all competitions. Girls varsity won a 'superior' ribbon, an 'excellent' and two 'outstanding ribbons. An 'excellent' and two 'outstanding' ribbons. An 'excellent' and three 'outstanding' ribbons were awarded to the junior varsity squad.

Besides cheering at games, the cheerleaders were in charge of pep assemblies and a hospitality room for other cheerleaders during the Capital Invitational Tournament. The squads attended a clinic held by the Washburn University cheerleaders where they learned stunts and chants. They also earned the best cheerleader award at the CIT Tournament.

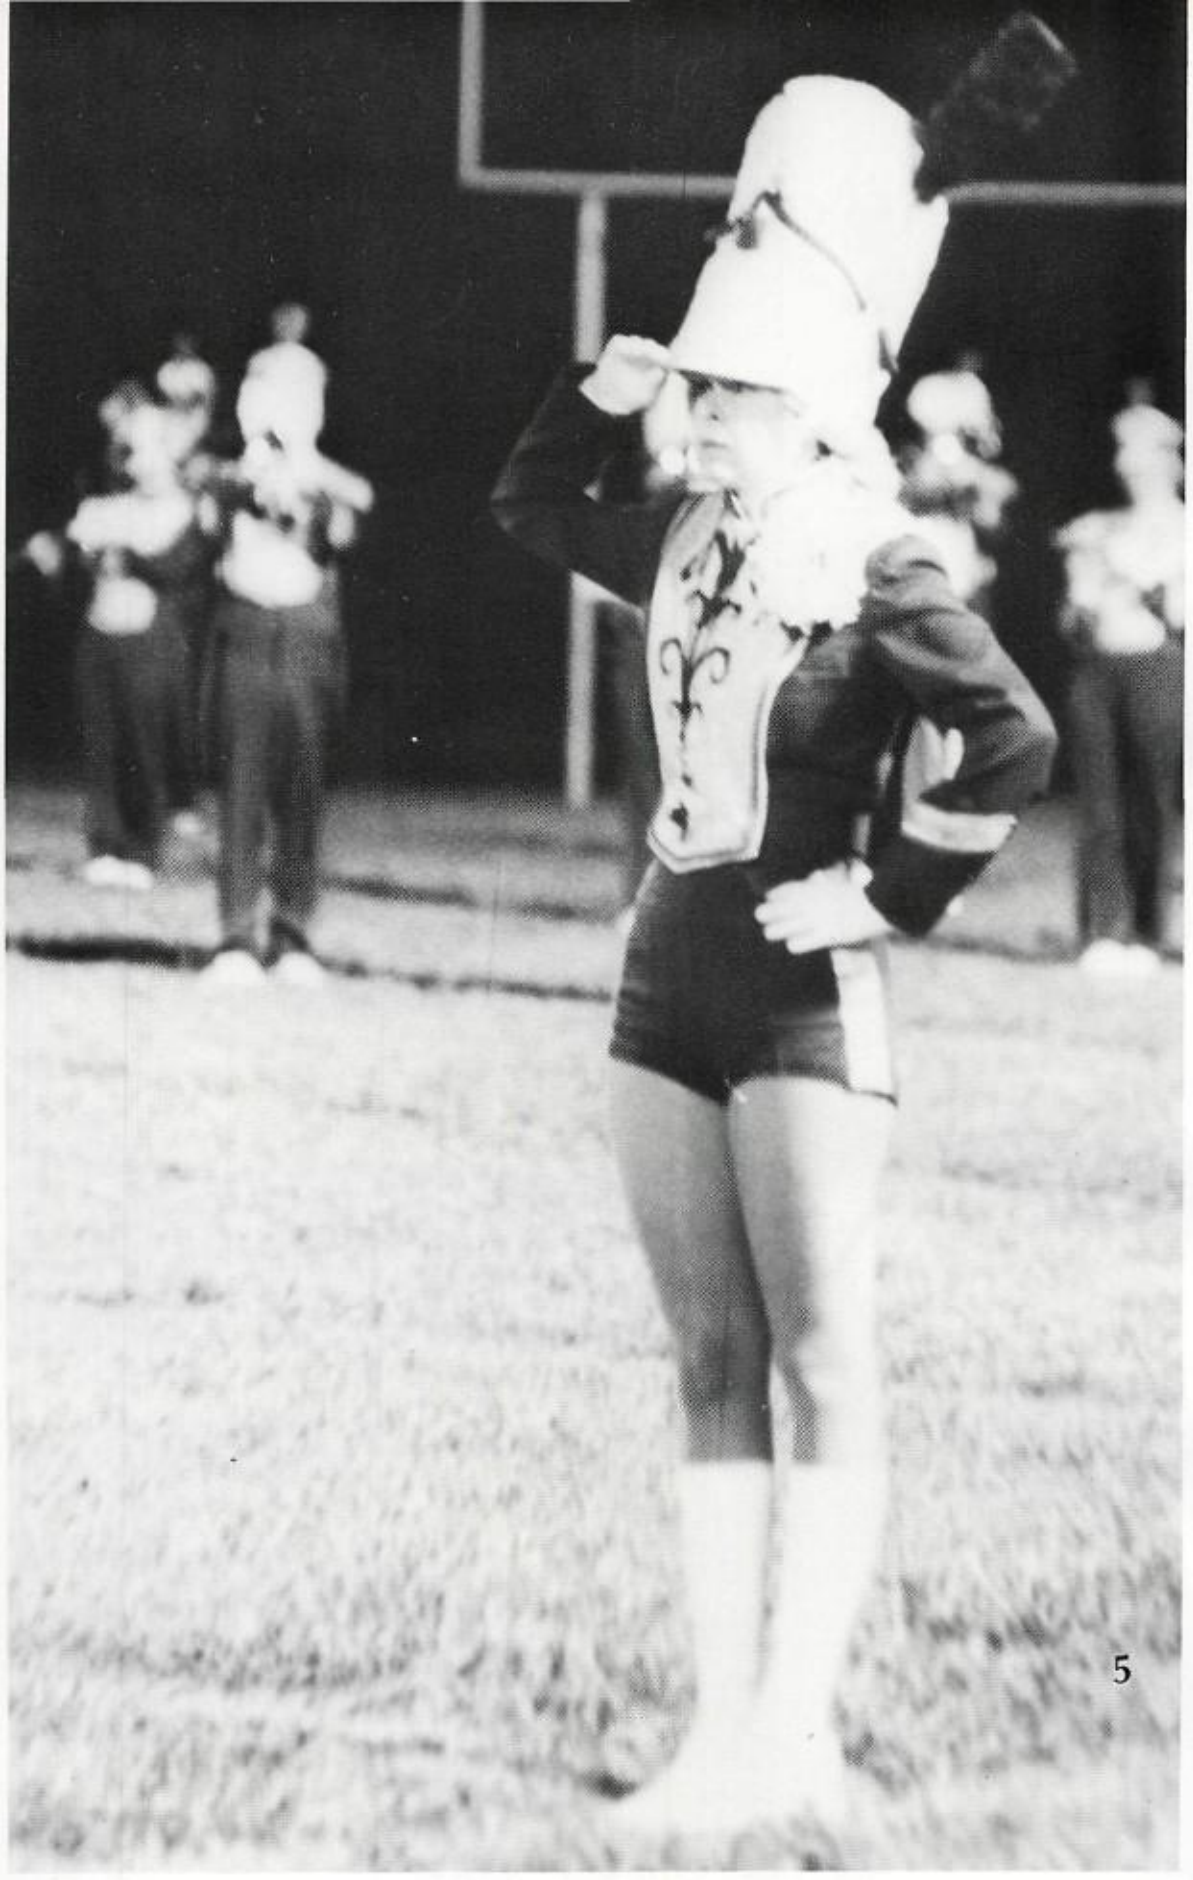
Waiting to do a pom pon routine, Sherry Crow and Pam Purdam, seniors, stand beside their director Mr. Gerry Coacher. 8. Waiting her turn to perform is Angie Stephens, senior.



TEAM SPIRIT

The 1980-81 banner squad played a large role in developing the school spirit at WRHS. But they were not the only group to boost the Jr. Blues spirit. On November 1, the Pom Pon corps joined Banner Squad and the band at Neewollah competitions in Independence.

Washburn Rural as marching band received one ratings for Field Competition and Parade. Banner Squad added another one rating in the Flag Corps Comeptition.

In March of 1980, judges for Pom Pon evaluate each girl for coordination, size, quickness to learn marching skills, and high knee lifts and kicks. Interested participants tryout to routines and individuals with the highest score become members of the Pom Pon squad.

When asked how extra-curricular activities benefit her personal development, senior, Lisa Wall answered, ''Pom Pon has helped me be more sure of myself.''

''Participation in Banner Squad helped me support the school and the sports activities without getting directly involved with sports. It can really lift self confidence; it's a part of school everyone should experience sometime,'' expressed Laura Waters.

FESTIVITIES

"Seeing all the plans of the Homecoming massed together was exciting.. I just hope that the night was memorable to the queen candidates" said Debra Hix, senior, who was in charge of the activities.

The 1980 Homecoming ceremonies on October 10 provided for the return of many alumni and the crowning of the queen. Reigning over the game, senior Monica Schultz and her escort Robert House were attended by Tami Poling, Kevin Crow, Christine Freswyk and Tom Dultmeier, also seniors.

Prior to Homecoming a spirit week was held to raise enthusiasm. Monday's cowboy day winners of the best costume were Jeff Whistler, senior, and Vicki Wiezorek, junior. On Tuesday, clothes from the 1950's was the attire of the day with a hoola-hoop contest at break. The best hoola-hooper was Jackie Harr, sophomore.

P.J.'s were worn and teddy bears were cuddled on Wednesday. Best costumes for the day were Kellee Sommers, Dan Simpson, seniors, and Leeta Sanders, junior. Students dressed in new wave fashions on Thursday. Jimmy Cunningham senior was the winner of the best costume that day.

Friday was the traditional blue and white day, and sophomore Kelly Miller earned the prize for the most spirited costume.

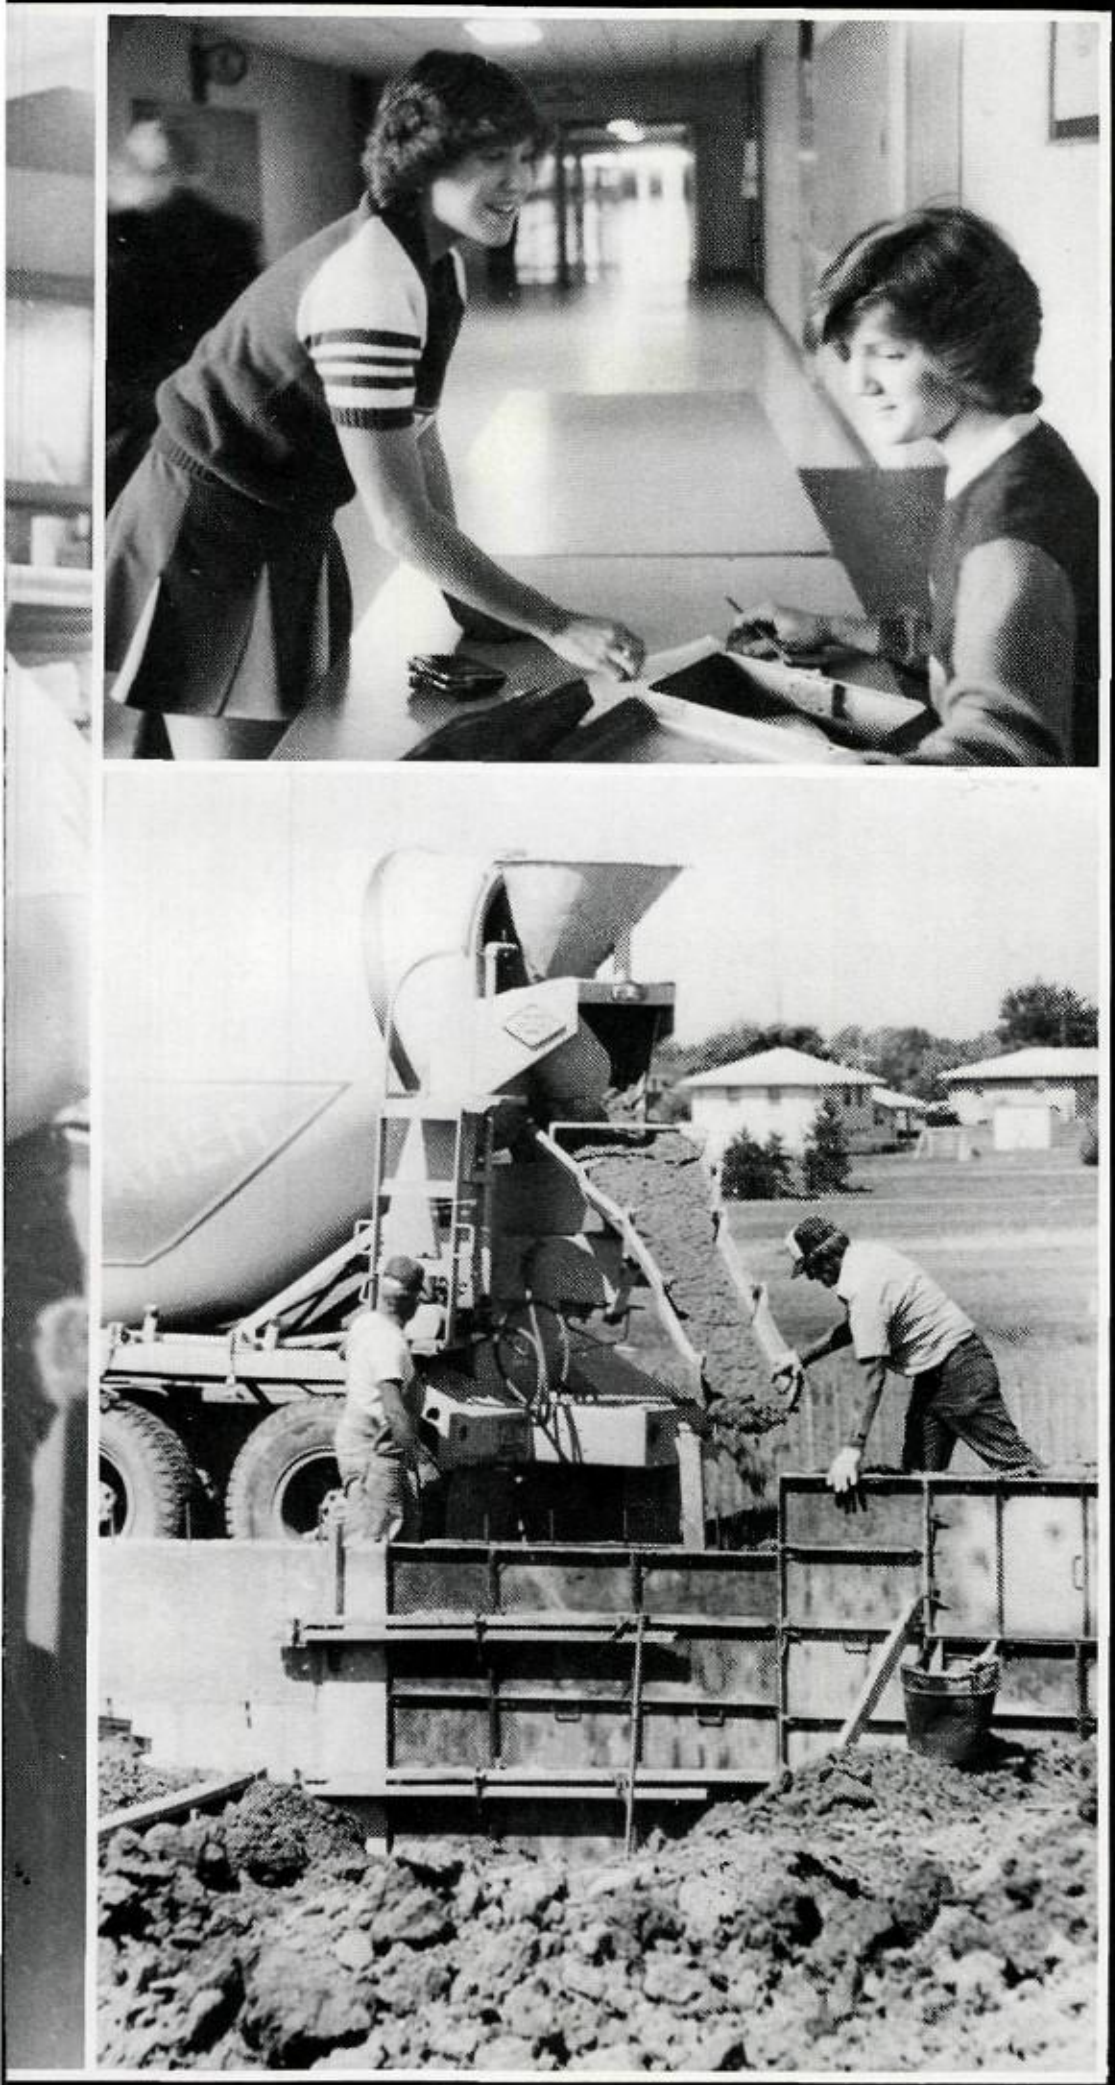
ONE PART OF EDUCATION IS LEARNING TO LIVE

AS AN EFFECTIVE MEMBER OF ONE'S BUSINESS AND SOCIAL COMMUNITY AND ITS MANY ACTIVITIES



"Serving on the bank board taught me the value of saving money at the bank and how the banking system works. This participation also introduced ways that banking can be used to help me in a future career in the business world," stated senior Paul Cater.

Student involvement in business and community activities is encouraged to relate school-related programs to actual experiences. Such involvment is promoted through field trips, career seminars, resource speakers in the classroom, and job experiences.

As customers and workers, students carry ideas and skills from Rural's classroom into the business community. Communications, techniques, social understanding, economic concepts, and specific job skills provided the background experience to help each individual develop into an effective citizen.

Specific areas of interest are further encouraged as students sell and develop advertising for school publications, participate in cooperative work experience programs or hold down part-time jobs.

Support of the school and its activities by the business community provides the vital link in personal development as students learn to live for their role in a modern society. Continued involvement adds strength to the educational program and the structure of the community.

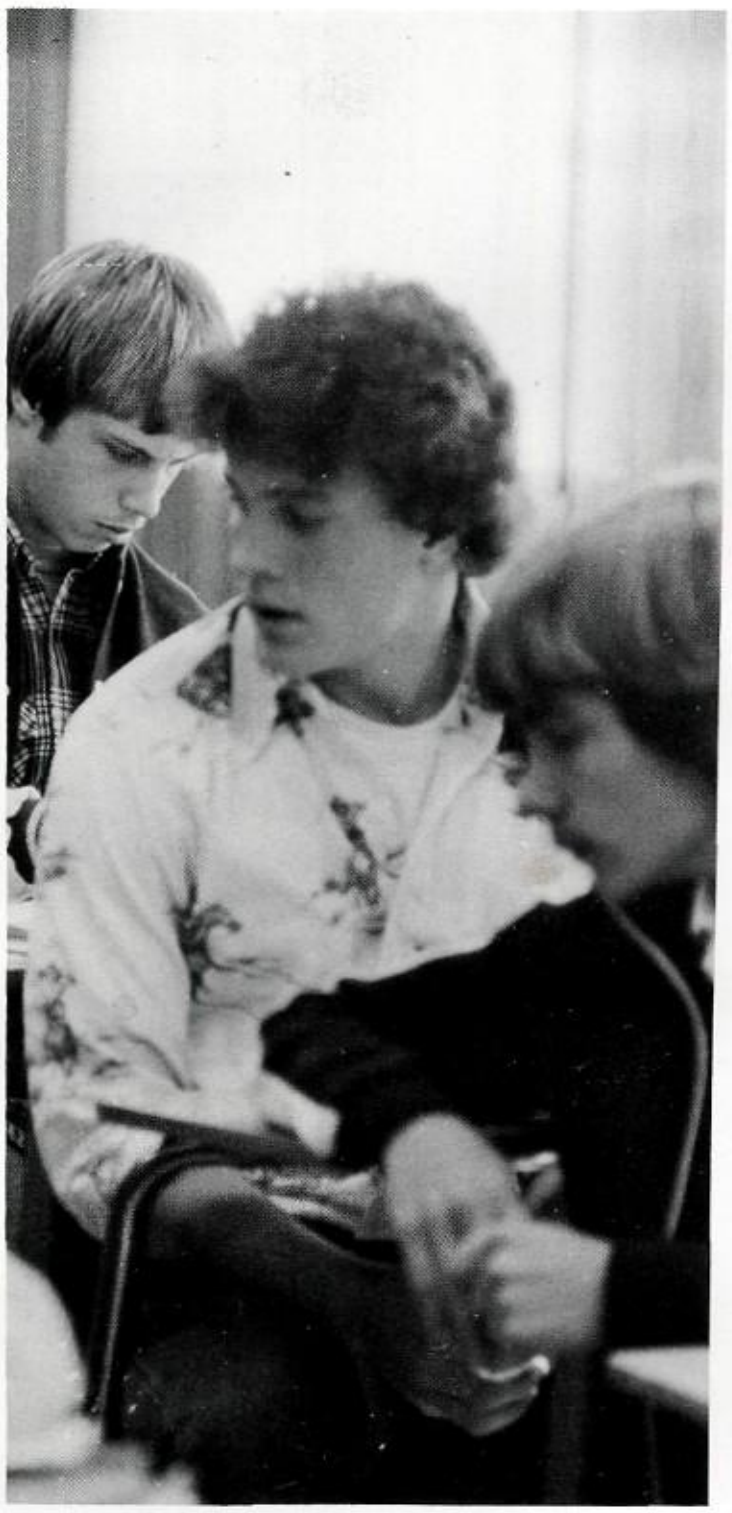
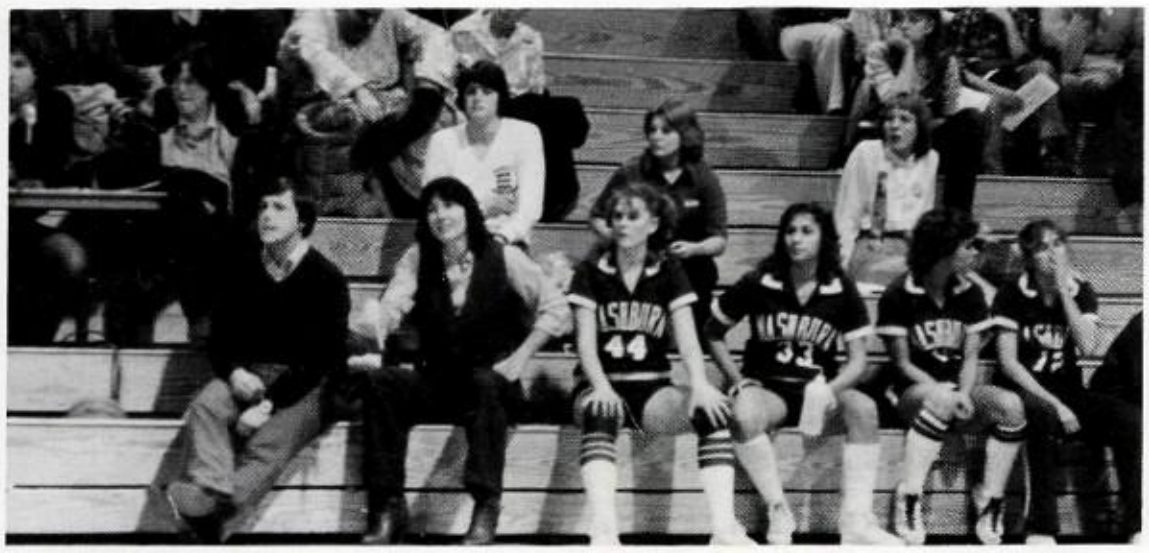
"After spending one year with another family, changing customs and habits, and adapting to a new way of life, I really feel some changes in myself. I feel more mature by now; I have a better understanding of myself, and I think I really found goals that I will pursue in the future," said Luis Fleitas, AFS exchange student from Paraguay.

Throughout the 1980-81 school year, many factors contributed to our learning process and helped us learn to live differently through growth and change. In the unsettled world of 1980-81, we were surprised at the landslide victory of President Ronald Reagan, overjoyed at the return of our hostages from Iran and the fantastic showing of the nation's athletes at the 1980 Winter Olympics in Lake Placid New York, oppressed by growing inflation and interest rates, and apalled by the murder of John Lennon, and most recently, the attempted assassination on the life of the new president.

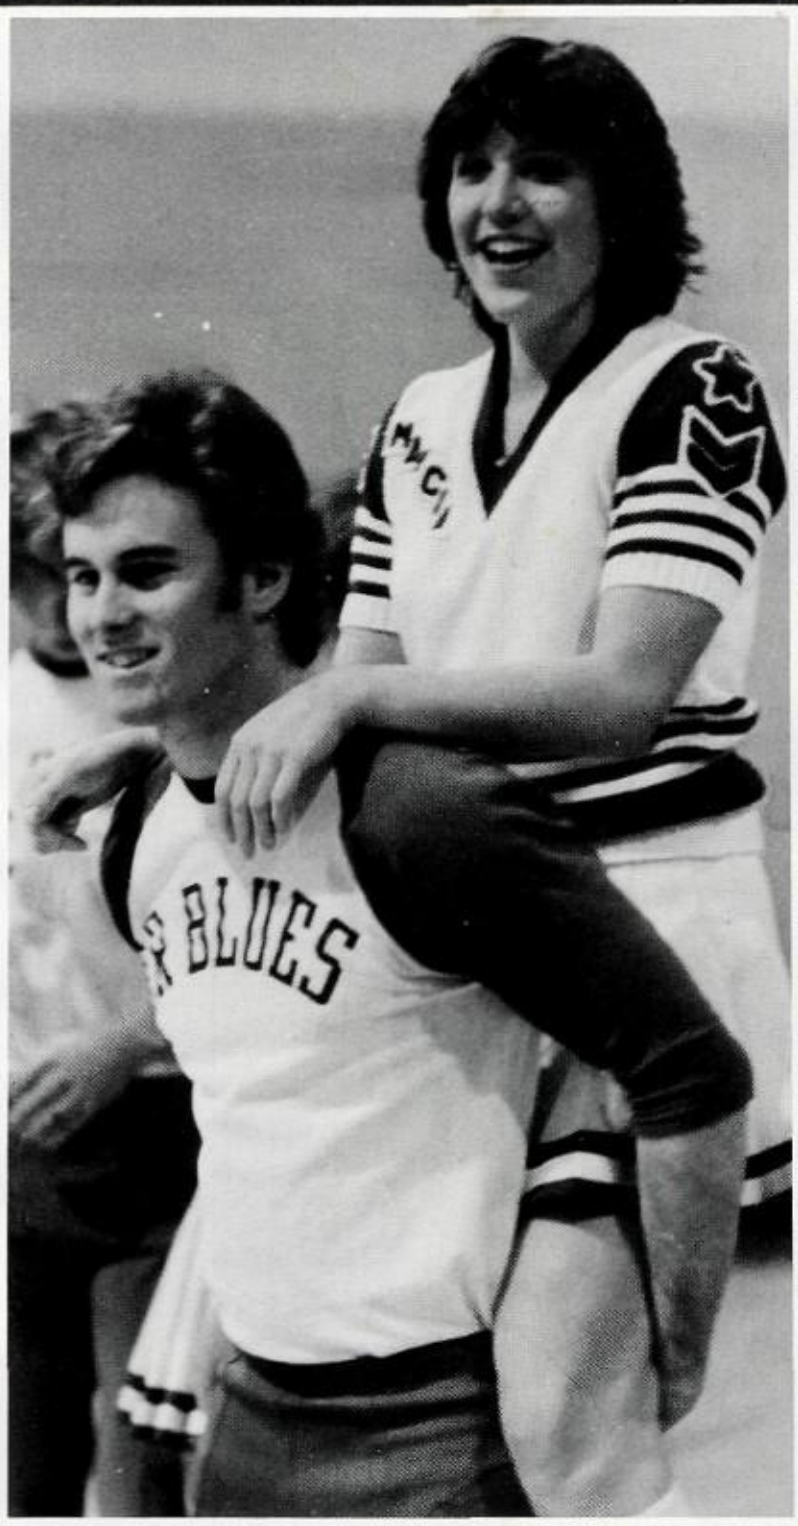
During all of these happenings, life at WRHS went on. We worked together through teams and groups; we learned to accept responsibility.

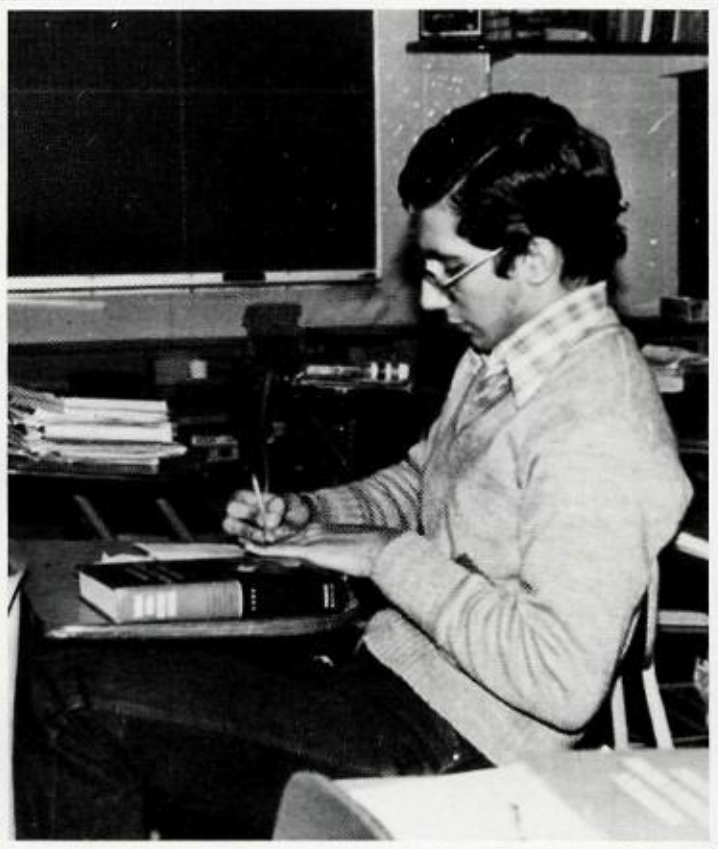


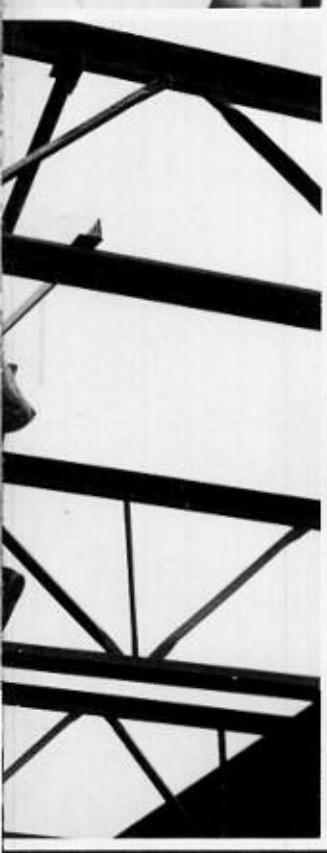
STUDENTS, STAFF, AND IMPORTANCE OF EXPERIENCES SHARED BY STUDENTS, STAFF, AND

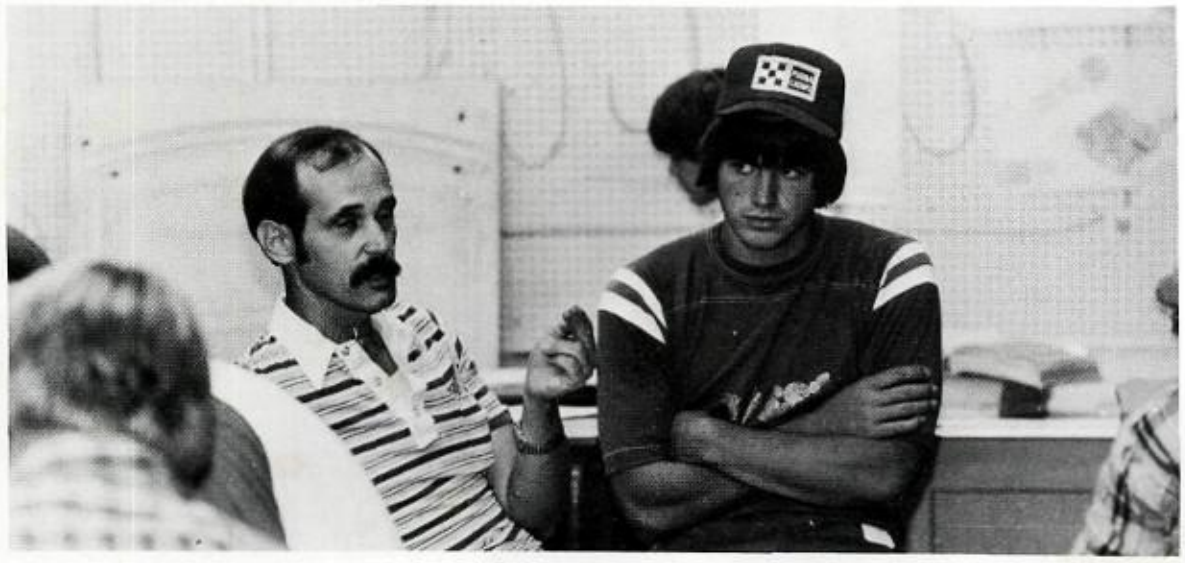


PATRONS OF WASHBURN RURAL EMPHASIZED

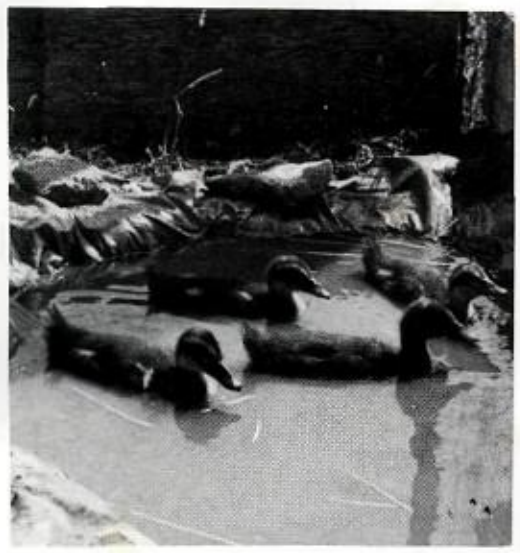








AS EACH OF US LEARNS TO LIVE IN EVERCHANGING WORLD



As this year comes to a close, hopefully we can all look back to our experiences and see how they prepared us for life. Whether the experience was good or bad, it took us one step further in our process of learning to live.

In the final paragraphs of the 1981 Chimes, I would like to thank those staffers who truly cared about the book as I did. (You know who you are.) I'd like to thank my family for putting up with many late nights throughout the year, and especially in the final weeks of completing the book. Many thanks go to all of my faithful friends, including Sara, Jen, Lisa, Rob, and Doug, for constant moral support and always listening. Thanks, Sarah Ross, for your "counseling by correspondence" and encouraging words--you were one of the few who truly understood.

Thanks to those teachers at WRHS whose subjects I learned. And lastly, thanks to Mr. Arlin Morgan, for his ability to keep me "lightened up" and relatively calm in times of crisis and "solo-ing it" after school.

Love and God Bless,

Jeannie Blanck
